Short Circuit Probable Cause Of Space Drama

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — A mysterious short circuit probably caused a small maneuvering rocket to run wild on Gemini 8, sending the spacecraft into its harrowing spin that forced an emergency end to the flight, the space agency said Saturday.

An investigating team pored over data received from tracking stations around the world and the spacecraft itself and ruled out any possibility of error on the part of astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott.

"A short in the circuits controlling a spacecraft yaw thruster has been planned down as the probable cause of the difficulty," said a statement released at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

The wayward thruster was No. 8 at the rear of Gemini 8, and part of the 16-rocket system used to maintain the spacecraft's attitude.

Armstrong and Scott were thrown into wild gyrations 185 miles above earth after they had completed man's first link-up in space between two vehicles — the spacecraft and an orbiting Agena rocket.

Things were relaxed and calm as the two astronauts rode through space parked with the Agena. Then, suddenly, about 30 minutes later, the rigid combination bucked and rolled.

The space agency traced the sequence of events this way: After docking, both vehicles were stable and all systems operated normally. The astronauts then sent a 90-degree yaw — sideways — maneuver, and turned on the Agena tape recorder to tape the activities.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union finally signed a new cultural exchange agreement Saturday night — three days after the accord ran into a mysterious last-minute delay.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin and John M. Leddy, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, represented their countries at a brief closed door signing ceremony at the State Department.

The new two-year pact extends through 1967. The program began in 1958 for a broad range of exchanges of artists, scientists, scholars and others between the two countries.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin and John M. Leddy, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, represented their countries at a brief closed door signing ceremony at the State Department.

Then, trouble struck. A 25-pound yaw thruster suddenly went full blast, throwing the docked vehicles into a tumble and roll.

Unknown to the crew, the thruster fired three seconds, shut off three seconds, then fired continuously.

Armstrong and Scott, able to maintain reasonable control of the docked vehicles at the time, began to trouble-shoot the problem. In attempting to isolate the problem to either the spacecraft or Agena, they undocked.

"Almost immediately, the spacecraft began to tumble excessively and primarily in roll," the statement said. "The roll rates approached one revolution per cent, and the crew realized they were approaching their physiological limits."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson sent Congress Saturday a plan to double spending on water research in the next five years — and to study even such novel ideas as water-towing Southern California by towing in arctic icebergs.

Johnson sent Congress the blueprint for a 10-year research program prepared by the Committee on Water Resources Research set up by the federal Council for Science and Technology.

This document envisions research outlays increasing from an estimated $91.9 million this year to $199.3 million in 1971.

In a letter accompanying the report, Johnson said the program would be refined and revised "as the future state of our knowledge grows." But he said it "establishes a guideline for action."

Not National Problem
The council concluded that "as a whole, the nation does not face a critical water shortage."

With proper management of water supplies, it said, there should be adequate water for the foreseeable future but it added:

"Regionally and locally, however, especially in arid and semiarid regions of the country, we are approaching full utilization, and in all parts of the country we experience droughts which create serious temporary deficiencies."

Nationwide, the scientists said, "Natural water supplies are adequate to support a three-to-five fold increase in water consumption."

In urging thorough research on all aspects of water use and conservation, the scientists said no bet should be overlooked — even "a suggestion to supply Southern California with water by towing in icebergs from the Arctic."

"Some will suggest that the idea is impossible — the suggestion of a crackpot. Without evaluation one cannot be sure and even though an idea does not survive critical evaluation it may suggest other things which are really practicable."

The course will include grade separations, clover leaves, railroad crossings, one way streets and all the different traffic signs and signals encountered in Illinois.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's winter of discontent with a rebellious Senate is ending with a temporary lull in attacks on his Viet Nam policies.

But the legislative flowers of the "Great Society" program he has hoped would bloom with the spring may be choked back by the weeds of rancor sown in bitter debate over his conduct of the Asian war.

In the 43 days it has been in session since Congress convened in January, the Senate has passed exactly one major administration measure. It was a $6-billion tax acceleration bill to help meet the costs of Viet Nam fighting.

For about 30 minutes, Armstrong and Scott fought to regain control of Tiny Gemini 8, and did so by shutting off the maneuvering system that included the No. 8 thruster, and activating the secondary system normally used for critical re-entry positioning.

Once he turned on the secondary system, a long-standing rule in the Gemini program caused the flight director, John Hodge, to order Armstrong and Scott home. The rule says: "Once you use any of the re-entry control system fuel, you must end the flight in the next best landing area."

"This entire sequence of events is fully explained by a short circuit causing No. 8 thruster to fire," the statement said. "This thruster imparts combined roll and yaw motions to the spacecraft."

"Examination of records clearly indicate that the Gemini spacecraft electrical malfunction causing the thruster to fire is not related to the command which had just been sent to the Agena," the statement noted.

"In fact, no command that could have been sent the Agena could have caused subsequent events."

No theory was advanced on exactly what caused the short circuit.

Dr. Robert Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center, commended Armstrong and Scott, two eager astronauts taking their maiden orbital voyage, for exhibiting "extraordinary piloting skill in overcoming this very serious problem and bringing the spacecraft to a safe landing."

Scores of space agency officials and engineers spent several hours sifting through data from a spacecraft tape recorder, statements from the astronauts and other vital data before deciding a short circuit caused the problem.

Dr. George Mueller, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's associate administrator for manned space flight, who participated in the view, commended the evaluation team for coming up with the answer in less than 72 hours.

As officials revealed their decision, Armstrong and Scott were at Cape Kennedy, Fla., where they arrived Saturday to begin three days of intensive debriefings.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A surprise Senate vote for a help — the elderly poor amendment to President Johnson's tax bill may have speeded an upward revision of basic Social Security payments.

The amendment was kept in the final bill only in a watered-down form when it was sent to President Johnson.

But the inclusion of the provision prompted both the President and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to say that the administration intends to do something next year about raising Social Security payments.

Higher Postal Rates Effective Next Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher rates for the postal system's five "special services" will take effect next Saturday, Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien said Saturday.

The new rates — first announced Jan. 11 — are designed to put a 60 per cent dent in the annual $60-million deficit being registered by the services.

Money order, registry and c.o.d. fees will go up for the first time since 1961. The last previous fee increases for insurance and certified mail were in 1957.

The fee for domestic and international money orders will be increased by 5 cents.

The minimum fee bracket for postal insurance will be increased from $10 to $15, with a minimum insurance fee of 20 cents instead of a dime. Above $20, the fee will be 30 cents; above $50, 40 cents; above $100, 50 cents, and above $150, 60 cents.

The present registry fees of 60 and 75 cents will be combined into a single 75-cent fee for values up to $100. Registry fees for articles valued at more than $100 will remain unchanged.

The fee for certified mail will be increased from 20 cents for each item to 30 cents.

And the present 40-cent and 50-cent fee brackets for c.o.d. mail will be combined into one 60-cent bracket for amounts up to $10, with no change in fees covering items valued at more than $10.

O'Brien said the fee increases "will shift a substantial portion of the special service cost borne by the public to the users of these services."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner said Saturday an 80-cent-a-ton royalty penalty negotiated by the United Mineworkers Union is illegal.

Examiner A. Bruce Hunt recommended that the independent union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, with which the contract was negotiated, cease enforcing the royalty payments.

The trial examiner's decision will become final in 20 days if neither side appeals.

The union negotiated the 80-cent royalty to apply to coal purchased by the big unionized coal firms from smaller non-union companies for processing.

The royalty, applied to pension and welfare benefits, is 40 cents a ton for companies whose employees are members of the Mineworkers.

Amend Social Security Program To Aid Elderly

Many legislators and administration experts on Social Security long have contended that the system must be upgraded to give more adequate protection to the elderly poor. The minimum monthly payments for an individual now is $44.

But many of these have said privately they doubted whether anything could be done before the presidential election year of 1968 or possibly even 1972.

They pointed out there was a major revision of Social Security last year with adoption of Medicare, and it normally takes several years to generate a new round of basic changes.

However, the upshot of the fight over the amendment added to the tax bill was that Johnson pledged to submit proposals next year to make Social Security benefits more adequate.

Republicans contend that the lion's share of the credit for this should go to mild-mannered Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., who has pushed relentlessly for six years for just such a revision.

Propose Changes
Prouty has been proposing two basic Social Security amendments:

A minimum monthly payment of $70, with proportionate increases for those entitled to more than the minimum.

A blanketing under Social Security of all the 1.8 million persons over 70 not now covered.

In each case, he proposes the additional benefits be financed from the Treasury's general revenues.

This is in line with the views of most experts at the Capitol, who say the payroll tax which now finances Social Security has been scaled as high as it should go.

Under the law passed last year setting up Medicare and raising regular Social Security payments 7 per cent, the payroll levy on an employee and his employer eventually will reach a combined 11.3 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some time this year, taxpayers may find their income tax boosted by about $5 for every $100 they now pay — this is the prevailing guess as President Johnson's administration and Congress buckle down to the costs with Viet Nam and Finance in the Senate, have done nothing. But a study group, the Senate-House Economic Committee, was active all last week.

Its Democratic majority issued a report saying evidence is mounting daily of the need for a tax increase to restrain inflation. It urged Congress to enact a standby program that could be triggered by a quickly passed joint resolution if the need became urgent.

A subcommittee opened hearings and by the end of the week had gathered the views of 11 economists. While the expert witnesses differed on many details, all but one agreed that a tax boost program of some sort should either be put into effect now or at least shaped up for quick enactment if needed later.

It was notable, moreover, that the great majority of the economists picked the personal income tax as the best possibility for anti-inflationary adjustment — the gentle way of saying an increase in the tax.

"Corporation Tax Too"
Several said that as a practical matter the corporate income tax would have to be raised too.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Cemal Gursel of Turkey developed a high fever Friday night and "his situation gets worse every day," Turkish embassy sources reported Saturday morning.

The president, who has suffered two strokes since he entered Walter Reed Army Hospital Feb. 2 had a "very bad night," these sources reported.

The Turkish government, the sources said, has abandoned a plan to send a group of Turkish doctors to Washington to ascertain whether Gursel has a chance to recover and resume the presidency.

Gursel has been in a coma since Feb. 8.

Claims Economic, Social Reforms Needed In Viet

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Buddhist Institute's chief called Saturday night for governmental, social and economic reforms and — for unity in the war effort — a return of purged generals from abroad to resume duty with the other officers.

"They must be united, united to fight against the Communists," Thich Tam Chau told a rally of more than 10,000 persons that overflowed into streets around the institute.

Highest ranking among the exiles are Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, last reported in Europe, and Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, who is in Thailand.

Both are former government leaders. Both were originally sent abroad on diplomatic missions — Minh to Asian neighbors and Khanh to the United Nations in New York. Both, like most of Viet Nam's people, are Buddhists.

The institute rally was one in a series of meetings, strikes and demonstrations touched off last week by the ouster of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, from a seat in the military government and his command of South Viet Nam's 1st Corps area.

Marines Killed
Chief field action was a clash between entrenched Viet Cong and a company of the U.S. 9th Marine Regiment at Binh Nam, a hamlet eight miles south of Da Nang. The Marines suffered moderate casualties and lost a helicopter in a 12-hour fight. They killed 10 Viet Cong.

U.S. pilots hit at Red targets on both sides of the border. Chau presented a low-keyed reiteration of Buddhist demands for a national election and a civilian government to replace Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime, plus further efforts to better the lot of the Vietnamese people. These were original set forth in a four-point communique March 12.

This war-torn nation "must have a congress and constitution in order to achieve social revolution," Chau said. But he said the communique was not intended to criticize or support anyone, or to urge the overthrow of anyone.

"We hope to live in prosperity and peace," he said.

The Buddhist leader reported that he had met with Ky and Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, the chief of state, both before and after issuing the communique.

TURKISH PRESIDENT REMAINS IN COMA

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Cemal Gursel of Turkey developed a high fever Friday night and "his situation gets worse every day," Turkish embassy sources reported Saturday morning.

They agreed with the four points, he said, and told him: "Keep quiet and keep reassured until the promises are carried out."

Ky has specifically promised a democratic constitution by next November and a national election in 1967. Social and economic improvements were among other things pledged in the declaration of Honolulu, issued by President Johnson and South Viet Nam's leaders Feb. 8.

"There is much suffering in the families due to war, the cost of living is higher and higher and security is not guaranteed," Chau said. "Viet Nam must be aware we wish the Vietnamese leaders to endeavor to give stability to the country."

Indonesian Leaders Urge Calm

SINGAPORE (AP) — An Indonesian military leader called on organizations in Jakarta Saturday to do nothing that could cause trouble, Radio Jakarta reported.

Presumably the appeal from Brig. Gen. Amir Machmud, military commander of Jakarta, was meant for both anti-Communists and Communists.

Anti-Communist organizations have demonstrated for weeks against First Deputy Premier Subandrio and other pro-Communists in the government of President Sukarno.

The new military regime placed Subandrio and 14 other Cabinet members under arrest last week.

According to Radio Jakarta, Machmud called in the heads of larger organizations in Jakarta and briefed them on the moves the military regime is taking to purge the Cabinet of Communist elements. He urged the leaders to "show social discipline and leave it to the armed forces to deal with the situation."

He said it is not necessary for the organizations to copy "the brutal style" of the Communists in dealing with events in Indonesia.

Machmud added, however, that he will not hesitate to take action against those who disobey his advice and instructions.

In a separate broadcast, Radio Jakarta announced a ban on travel abroad by Indonesians, except by officials with government permission and pilgrims going to the Moslem shrine at Mecca in Saudi Arabia.

Informants in Singapore reported that Jakarta appeared calm on the heels of Subandrio's arrest. They said the troops that Lt. Gen. Suharto had ordered to the capital during the arrests now have left the city.

Suharto is the military chief who is running the nation in place of Sukarno.

Sukarno was reported to be at his summer palace at Bogor, 40 miles south of Jakarta. He was taken there Friday under heavy guard, the informants said.

Calaboose Refuge For 'Bird House Jim' And His Hobo Friends Will Disappear From Jersey Scene

By ARTHUR THATCHER

JERSEYVILLE — Among the city buildings slated to disappear from the local landscape, when proposed new municipal structures are erected, will be the old calaboose still standing on South Jefferson Street adjacent to the old Jerseyville City Hall.

Noted some twenty-five years ago as the only wooden jail in Illinois and possibly the United States, the aged prison had been for more than a half century at that time the lockup by day and night for city drunks and various types of violators.

It also served as a house of refuge in cold or bad weather for the hundreds of tramps or hoboes who passed annually through its portals. Most of the transients were repeaters. They would arrive in the spring and return in the autumn. The next year they would appear about their customary time heading for their northern summer haunts.

"Jail" 25 Years Ago
Until some twenty-five years ago, the calaboose was the only jail available for handling prisoners. The city finally purchased two steel cells which were set up on the concrete floor of the first story of the City Hall. The city prisoners were shifted to the new facilities, and the old calaboose was turned over exclusively to the transients and hoboes seeking a night's shelter from bad weather or freezing temperatures.

Two of the older members in point of service of the Jerseyville Police Department recalled the times when as many as twenty-seven transients would be housed in the one large room of the old calaboose during bad winter nights. They are Chief of Police Herman H. Blackorby Jr., and Captain Edward Henson. The latter joined the police force here in December, 1940, and later became chief for a number of years. Blackorby became a member of the force November 11th, 1946. Police wages were low in those years, the salary being $90 a month, with long hours.

Henson recalled how the "sleepers" would divide into groups when morning came and they were turned out of the calaboose. "Somebody always had a piece of chalk," he stated. "The ones going down a certain street would draw an arrow on the sidewalk pointing in the direction they had taken. That was to warn the next group not to take the same route in the general hunt for 'a bite to eat'."

Public Aid Erased Need
Need for the calaboose for housing transients gradually diminished with the advent of new federal and state legislation covering old age assistance, social security and other forms of benefit. A few years ago the building was closed to the hoboes and turned over for use of the Jerseyville Street Department for storage of tools and other equipment.

When an occasional sleeper comes along in adverse weather, he is usually sheltered at the county jail, but they are seldom observed now. The old type hobo in this area is about as scarce as wild pigeons.

Up to the time when the calaboose ceased to be used to house transients and vagrants, among the names and addresses that were scrawled on the walls appeared that of B. H. Jim.

The bearer of the cognomen made annual trips each spring through this section of Illinois from his winter haunts in the south to his summer place of sojourn in the north.

Best Known "Resident"

The name B. H. Jim was unusual for it also applied to the occupation Mr. Jim followed as he traveled about the country, that of building and selling bird houses wherever he happened to hang his hat when he had one. He also declared to local police of the force thirty years ago that his entire name was Bird House Jim, that his first name was a family one and had been given to him by his mother whose name before her marriage had been Bird.

Jim always carried a few tools with him to enable the mending of his trade. A small saw which could be disassembled, a medium size hammer and pair of pliers along with necessary nails and metal fasteners were usually in his possession.

Bird House Contractor
With this small amount of equipment, Bird House Jim built houses for his feathered friends in a variety of sizes and shapes. Most of the bird houses were replicas of log cabins or lodges. In the Jerseyville vicinity, he cut his materials mostly from branches found in a grove of willow trees existing at that time about one and a half miles south east of Jerseyville adjacent to the present Gulf, Mobile and Ohio tracks, at that time the Chicago & Alton Railroad. The grove has since disappeared along with a mulberry grove that grew northwest of the willow woods.

"B. H." Sign Of Spring
Jim's arrival in the early spring and departure were generally subject to weather conditions, and how rapidly he could sell the bird dwellings he had fashioned before moving on to the next county seat or location he had selected. A bird house fifteen by twelve by ten inches with a gable roof was sold for as little as fifty cents. Through the years, a number of his bird houses were to be found suspended from trees of many

Boyd-Lowe Vows Repeated At Pittsfield

PITTSFIELD—Miss Sue Lowe and Dan Boyd were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, Feb. 26 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lowe of Pittsfield, Rev.

Jerseyville lawns. Among the last to disintegrate was one that hung for many years suspended from a branch of a large apricot tree at 708 West Exchange Street.

"I've got bird houses all the way from Arkansas to Canada's border," he told local police officers one morning while the daily morning let-out at the calaboose was in progress. The police of thirty years ago came to refer to Jim as the First Robin, and when he arrived usually after mid March each year, it would be jokingly announced that spring must be near for the First Robin was back in town.

Loved Birds and Dogs
"I've got a warm feeling in my heart for the little feathered fellows," Jim explained one day as he was working on a bird house at the calaboose, a supply of short willow pieces on the floor near him. "Their nesting places are getting scarcer each year because of men, and someone will have to supply them with homes or bless us, we'll soon be without the wee birds. Then the country will go to the dogs. I said the bugs and not the dogs, but bless the puppies, too."

Among the other transients with the spring migration of hoboes was one who signed the calaboose wall as "Red" Fanning. Fanning and Bird House Jim could have well been listed as comrades. They always arrived here at about the same date and seemed to have much in common. It was Fanning who told about the last hours of Bird House Jim in a Salvation Army billet.

"I was with Jim when he died," he related the following spring after Jim's death. "The saw bones said it was pneumonia that took him. A half hour before he stopped breathing, he tried to raise up and pointed to a window. He tried to talk. I thought he said 'There's one of my birdies now. Huntin' for a house.'"

Joe Maynard officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Dana Boyd are the bridegroom's parents.

The bride wore a pale blue wool sheath with matching accessories and carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations. Peggy Kimble of Springfield and Sam Boyd, brother of the bridegroom, attended the couple. Peggy Lowe, sister of the bride, was ring bearer. Candles were lighted by Stanley Boyd and Jerry Carnivale. Miss Kimble wore a royal blue dress with a white carnation corsage.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Byron Barnd, Mrs. Paul Stillwell, Suzanna Carnivale of Savannah, sister of the bridegroom, Beth West of Mexico, Mo., Marcia Stark, Jeanne Hooper and Sandy Stillwell.

Mrs. Boyd is employed in the office of Teachers College at Kirksville, Mo. where her husband is a junior. Both are graduates of Pittsfield High school.

Pastor Has Neither Sermons Nor Church

By BUD SPRUNGER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Rev. Don Stuart never reaches a sermon. He does not have a church building. He starts work at 10 p.m. and finishes at 6 a.m., and he likes it that way.

His ministry, sponsored by the San Francisco Council of Churches, is to the night people — the strippers, hustlers, bar-keepers, dope addicts, alcoholics, musicians, homosexuals and the sleepless aged.

"I never felt more productive in my life," says the Rev. Mr. Stuart, who, at 43, is unassuming, slender, inquisitive, talkative and assured.

"Basically I'm a pastor now — I'm on a one-to-one relationship with those in trouble. And most folks I meet are willing to accept my advice. I'm kind of a last resort."

When the council, made up of the city's main Protestant faiths, decided to start a ministry to the night people, the Rev. Mr. Stuart was pastor of the United Church of Christ at Lincoln, Neb. Before that he had been pastor in Nickerson, Kan.

How could a married man from small towns handle a night ministry in a tough seacoast city, the council asked when his name was proposed.

He was raised in Chicago, which answered one question. And he believes that a man who quits work at 6 a.m. and goes home to a wifeless house would soon be as "nutty as those he wants to help." That took care of the other.

Most of the time, the Rev. Mr. Stuart patrols the Tenderloin, a rough part of San Francisco north of Market Street and west of Powell Street's cable cars. It's an area seldom seen by tourists.

Most of the Rev. Mr. Stuart's calls come from Tenderloin regulars who know him as "Father Don." Night clerks in small hotels, night restaurant managers and cab drivers call him when they spot a person in trouble.

He also has a telephone listing under "Night Minister." Some 40 volunteers man that line, relaying calls by means of an electronic gadget that summons him to pay telephones.

Getting to know Tenderloin regulars took time, since night people are almost universally suspicious and many operate on the wrong side of the law. Father Don took pains to assure them he was not a reformer, that he doesn't condemn or condone, that he talks on spiritual matters only when asked.

His ministry is mainly conversational, teaching the night people the church cares for them.

"For too long, the church has been busy with self-perpetuation, catering mainly to those whose allegiance is an asset," he says. "But if we are to be Christian, we must put aside this self-protective religion and learn to recognize both Christ and ourselves in the most unhappy, or confused, or disreputable members of the human family."

Seal Sale Means Camp To Ronald

Ronald Aring, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Aring, 716 West Railroad street, looks hopefully toward the success of the 1966 Easter Seal mail campaign which the Pilot Club has prepared. Ronald is with Miss Dorothy Lukeman, left, and Mrs. Catherine Rowe, local Pilot members.

The Easter Seal campaign is still in need of help and research for orthopedically handicapped children and adults in Morgan county, and all counties in the United States. It is true that with the increase in research, and services rendered by more than 1,400 state and local affiliates, the number of crippled children is on the decrease. However, there are more than 200,000 children and adults who get help annually.

No one knows when he or she may become crippled. Easter Seals each year provide rehabilitation care to thousands of crippled children and adults regardless of cause of crippling, race, religion, national background or economic status.

The National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, and many affiliates, known as Easter Seal Societies, fight crippling on the national, state, and community levels through a co-ordinated program of direct treatment, research and education.

Eighty-five percent of the funds raised by the sale of Easter Seals are used to support local services for the physically handicapped. The balance of the money is used by the State and National Society for Crippled Children and Adults to support research and educational programs.

Support of the citizens in Morgan county is needed if students like Ronald are to be sent to a summer camp for orthopedically handicapped. Summer camps not only give pleasure but are important therapeutically.

Mrs. Mildred Hill, chairman and Mrs. Catherine Rowe, co-chairman of the Easter Seal project report the Easter Seal letters are now in the mail.

ROTARY COMPLETES BOOK PROJECT ON PIKE EDUCATORS

PITTSFIELD—At the regular luncheon meeting Wednesday noon of the Pittsfield Rotary club several local citizens were presented copies of the bound book "Education and the Educators in Pittsfield, Illinois, 1833-1963."

The book is the thesis written by Dale Willard for his Master of Arts degree in Education from MacMurray College in 1964. Willard is an eighth grade teacher in Pittsfield and a 1947 graduate of Pittsfield high school.

The Rotary club financed the publication in permanent and bound form. The thesis was bound in Chicago at the State school for handicapped children. Fifty copies were given to various local organizations and governmental offices including the public library, the newspaper offices, Pike County historical society, and local schools. Dale Willard will retain some of the 100 copies of the 161-page book to dispose of as he sees fit.

Dr. Tom Bunting and Rev. Duane Moss were in charge of the project. The club embarked on this project as a service to the community and a means of paying tribute to the schools and teachers of this area.

At the special presentation Wednesday, copies were given to Eldon Atwood of Pittsfield, county superintendent of schools; Milo Pearson of Pleasant Hill, president of Pike Historical Society; Ruth Caughlan of the Pike County Democrat Times; Harold Claus, principal of Higbee school and Dale Willard the author of the manuscript.

Other copies will be presented to J. H. Voshall superintendent of Unit #10 school district, Al Seiler of the Pike County Republican newspaper and Paul Findley, congressman. Copies will also be given to others who helped in the research for the thesis, a valuable historical record of the Pittsfield school system.

Braner Services Conducted Here

Funeral services for Newell Braner were conducted at 3 p.m. Friday at the Williamson Funeral Home, Reverend Orvel Prior officiating. Alvin Mendenhall sang "Rock of Ages" and "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," accompanied by Mrs. Genevieve Wood.

Pallbearers were Roscoe Goodpasture, Floyd Goodpasture, Melvin Horn, Omer DeVault, Francis Brickey and Howard Farmer. Burial was in Arcadia cemetery.

A $100,000 BILL—Cindy Rawlings, 6th grader from Franklin, admires a pair of $100,000 bills on display in the lobby of Elliott State Bank. The two bills are part of a $400,000 collection loaned by the Treasury Department to the bank for display purposes. Included in the collection are bills of all denominations as well as a panel of counterfeit examples.

In case you've never seen a $100,000 bill, the bill is printed in gold on one side and black on the other and bears a picture of Woodrow Wilson. The only use for the bills is in large transactions by the Federal Reserve System or the Federal Land Banks. Obviously, it would be a little hard for a private citizen to cash one. Bank officials confirmed that they haven't had much call to change such a bill in recent history.

Change for a $100,000 bill would tower 63 feet high in $1 bills or would stretch for nine miles if placed end to end. Because of their rarity and the difficulty of passing them there is little danger of anybody trying to steal a $100,000 bill. There are only about 50 in circulation. (ADV.)

GIs Create A New Language

By TOM TIEDE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

SAIGON, Viet Nam — (NEA) — Soldiers never change but their lingo does. They went to war as infantrymen during the Revolution, as dogfaces in the 1940s, and now, this time around, they are calling themselves "grunts."

They live in the boonies (countryside) with the zoo (snakes). And their whole world is Mickey Mouse (sloved up). Ack-ack is out. Hubba hubba has gone the way of the Ike jacket. And in their stead are the hip and flip phraseology of a generation which has given birth to Vietnicks, Pop Art and the Hootenanny.

Indeed, you can't understand the GI without a glossary. Items:

WAIT ONE is the olive drab colloquialism of "excuse me." If a pfc. says it, it means wait one minute — a captain one hour — and a general however long it takes to get confirmation from Washington.

SHORT-TEMPER denotes an individual whose tour of duty is growing short. Counting usually begins 24 hours after arrival.

COCKA is Vietnamese for Coca Cola.

WHISTEA, also Vietnamese, is a drink a GI must buy a bar hostess if he is to hold her interest. Also known as Saigon tea.

DI DI, Vietnamese again, means either "go home" or "follow me" and may be used by a bar hostess in either way depending on whether the GI buys the whistea.

GRUNT is a Marine neologism for infantry.

BURP is an infantry neologism for Marine.

PEA, spelled variously, is short for plastré, the Vietnamese currency. It is not to be mistaken for MPC (military payment certificate) which is given troops here instead of Green (dollars).

NUMBAH ONE is Saigon street slang for "the best" and usually describes clothing, souvenirs and women . . . none of which are.

NUMBAH TEN, conversely, once meant the worst. No more. The real worst now is NUMBAH ONE THOU and will stand until somebody finally coins NUMBAH ONE MIL.

SORRY ABOUT THAT is verbal salvo for an assortment of complaints. The British say, "hard cheese."

ALLIED ASSAULT, according to camp comics, is a catch-all phrase describing an action where American troops move forward while Vietnamese units wait in reserve.

ZAPPED means to get shot.

WAXED means to get killed.

LEGS is a derogatory term applied to infantrymen by paratroopers who, in turn, are greeted by infantrymen who yell: "Say, Mac, what drops out of the sky?"

HALLO-OK, Vietnamese pidgin English, is the unofficial greeting from native children to combat soldiers passing through a village.

VICTOR CHARLEY is phonetic alphabet recognition of the enemy who gives the official greeting to combat soldiers passing through a village.

CO (rhymes with go) is an unmarried Vietnamese girl.

BROADMINDED is an academic argot applied to students of the Vietnamese word co.

JINK is jet pilot talk for a zigzag to elude enemy fire.

JUNK is pilot talk for a plane that zigged when it should have zagged.

THUD is also pilot talk for the end result of junk.

There is more fractured phrasing, to be sure. Some of it is of local origin but much of it's rich in the word-wealth of a nation that has moved from the jitterbug to the watusi in just under three armed conflicts.

As one confused visitor here put it recently: "We may be winning the war, but we're losing the language."

School Advisory Council Program Open To Public

The public is invited to hear a discussion of various plans for the organization of schools in the kindergarten - twelfth grade set-up. The Education Advisory Council, the Board of Education, and the administrative staff of District 117, have invited Dr. Van Miller, Professor of Educational Administration at the University of Illinois to discuss this and other problems related to the growth of school enrollment on Friday, March 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school library.

The Educational Advisory Council under the leadership of Al Stein, has been working on the problem for several months. The schools in District 117 have shown a steady growth of about one hundred pupils per year for several years, until today all buildings are at capacity. Any additional growth will require new classrooms. To meet the challenge different plans of school organization have been proposed. The one in use in District 117 is usually referred to as the 6-2-4 plan, six grades in elementary schools, two in junior high school and four in high school. The 6-3-3 plan, that is, six grades in elementary schools, three (grades 7-9) in junior high school, and grades 10-12 in the senior high school. There are other possibilities, such as the 5-3-4 plan. Dr. Miller will explain the strengths and shortcomings of each.

Fat, 12-inch rosette of this succulent from Mexico is well-suited for permanent planting in southwest.

Tests show Sasanqua camellias withstand winter in Pacific coastal states and as far north as Washington, D.C.

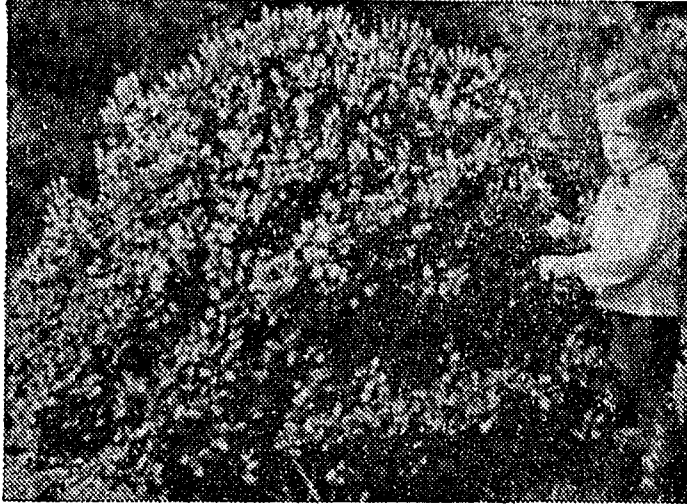

These Kurume semidwarfed azaleas prefer partial shade, though they also grow well in full sunlight. There are 19 varieties of dwarf azaleas which grow to 12 inches also available.

Those who live in today's one-story, rambler style houses have a real challenge on their hands. Many of the shrubs used traditionally in the exterior decoration of homes are useless for them. Even when cut back to the heavy branches each year, in no time the house is overwhelmed by the forest along the foundation.

To the rescue comes the United States Department of Agriculture. Pictured here are some of the species of ornamental plants developed with rambler houses in mind. Some are dwarfs and others bred for small size. Plant explorers have searched the world for them. Many are now in nurserymen's hands or will soon be available.

The dwarf Alberta spruce's cousins get 40 feet tall. Just as shapely, this will never get higher than 10 feet.

This dwarf Buford holly is 13 years old and only slightly taller than Gil Marz, 4, of Hyattsville, Md. Well-suited for low-growing, low-maintenance landscaping.

Slow growing habits of dogwoods fit them into the scheme. Other recommended trees: crab apple, Japanese cherry, golden-rain and red bud.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Although the stock market extended its decline through the fifth straight week, it managed to do something it has been unable to do since mid-January—advance for three straight sessions.

The advances were cautious and moderate. They failed to compensate for two sharp declines Monday and Tuesday. But they were regarded by analysts as a significant development, a change in the monotonous series of losses since the market touched historic highs Feb. 9.

It was the second week that Wall Street had seen signs of resistance to further selling. To some analysts it was merely a modest rally in a week-to-week downturn which had not yet given notice of a dramatic reversal. To others it was a hint that possibly — just possibly — Wall Street had seen the worst of the big retreat.

By the end of the Tuesday selloff, prices were down to their lowest level since early September. With nothing in particular to encourage it, the market rose without interruption Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week declined 5.07 to 922.88. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 3.3 to 343.6.

Volume was 38,112,680 shares compared with 44,848,284 the previous week.

The extent of the recovery last week is shown by the fact that during the worst of the selling on Tuesday at 2 p.m. (EST) the Dow Jones industrial average had sunk to 909.79. To recover to 922.88 by week's end was quite a comeback.

As the week ended, Wall Street chartists could not be sure of where the market was heading but some of them believed that the Dow industrials might make an attempt to rise to about 940, an overhead resistance level before coming back to test supports in a kind of base-forming process.

The prospects of a tax increase appeared to get warmer. Interest rate rises were spreading and money was getting tighter. These were the things the market has feared. When they materialized, stocks showed a bit of gumption again.

Of 1,551 issues traded this week, 991 fell and 430 rose. Selected issues, however, showed a lot of snap. KLM Airlines emerged with a net gain of 20 1/4 at 128. Color television, rails, airlines and electronics did well as the list rallied.

Bond prices advanced in all sectors of the market the past week. The upward surge was due to a combination of factors that created optimism.

Of the 40 Treasury bond issues all but one advanced in price, with five long-term issues marking advances of more than a full point.

Regular corporate bond prices were a bit stronger, but the weekly statistics showed more losses than gains.

Bond volume for the week totaled a par value of $72.26 million compared with $76.65 million in the previous week.

FRESH SASSAFRAS SALE HERALDS SPRING SEASON

JERSEYVILLE — Spring is safely here as a rule when the first peddlers of sassafras roots arrive in the locality. That is what happened here last week when an elderly man carrying a basket of the roots tied in small bundles went from door to door endeavoring to sell his wares.

There was a time when older residents bought the roots to make tea which they drank because they liked its aromatic flavor or as they believed "to thin and purify their blood."

Most of the old timers and sassafras tea drinkers have gone the way of the buffalo, and the newer generation does not as a rule take kindly to the product.

"They just don't care about their blood," the root peddler stated, mopping his forehead with a red bandanna handkerchief. "Reckon this will be my last spring digging of sassafras. But there is a new, hopeful angle this spring. Some young housekeepers bought my sassafras to flavor candy they were making. It's right good for that purpose."

CYCLIST AUXILIARY SETS COMMITTEES FOR MAY ROAD RUN

Named to the general committee were Mrs. Bob Morris, Mrs. Ray Boyd, Mrs. Paul McGlasson and Mrs. John Mullens. Mrs. Frank Slagle, Mrs. Harvey McGlasson and Mrs. Lawrence Devlin were appointed to the hostess committee.

Mrs. Harry Driver Jr. was elected as treasurer. The County Cavaliers have granted permission for the auxiliary to operate all concessions at club events.

Chosen to direct the operation of a concession stand for the "Enduro" event April 10 were Mrs. Ray Boyd, Mrs. Dale Williams and Mrs. Harry Driver Jr.

Mrs. Harvey McGlasson will be chairman in charge of all holiday candy cups. Following the business session, the members assembled Easter candy cups for patients at Oaklawn sanatorium and the Lasley Nursing Home.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Driver Jr.

ROOSTER RAMPAGES AND ATTACKS CHILD

JERSEYVILLE — A real "Cock of the Walk" was reported to the Jerseyville Police Department and the office of Sheriff Paul Miller Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning.

Wednesday afternoon the over-size white rooster which lives in a yard adjacent to Stryker Avenue in the eastern edge of the City of Jerseyville began taking in more territory than the average White Rock or Brahma male is allowed.

He first took over the walk outside of the yard and later ventured onto the highway. Pedestrians were confronted by the bird which would lower its head as they approached, peck at a time or two at the ground and then fly at the approaching persons.

Attacks Child Late Wednesday afternoon, the cock attacked a small five year old girl and pecked and spurred the child severely according to reports made to the city police.

Lawrence (Lasses) Droegge, city and county rabies investigator, was sent to Stryker Avenue Thursday morning to correct the situation. Droegge the preceding evening had just finished rounding up his 347th stray dog since the last of December. As he neared the rooster's range he spotted the big rooster in the middle of the road, crowing haughtily at times, then pecking at the ground and looking for a fight.

"I tried to run over him with the truck," Droegge reported, "but he got out of the way into the ditch at the roadside where I couldn't drive. I parked the truck and got out to round him up. He still wanted to fight, but later turned tail and ran. Finally I caught him and took him to his owner. We put him in a shed with the understanding he was to be kept off the public walk and highway where he couldn't peck out somebody's eyes. He is sure a big rooster."

Forum Meets Chapter 6 of the National Research Forum met recently at the new home of Randall Killbrev on Jefferson Street. Members present were Dr. William O'Reilly, L. Allan Watt, Henry B. Corrie, Norbert Hutchens, Dr. Bruno Schroetter, Elmer Fedder, Reverend Hays Willshire, Randall Killbrev and Reverend Marvin Cheney.

After minutes of the February meeting and those of March 1966 had been read, L. Allan Watt read an account of the trial and confession of Benjamin Smith, hanged for murder, as published in the Winchester Unionist, dated 1852.

Mr. Smith had been tried in the Circuit Court in Winchester in September 1852 for the murder of Henry Gimlin. The crime had been committed in Jersey County and the trial was moved to Scott County on a change of venue.

During the discussion period it was stated that only two legal executions, both by hanging, had occurred in Scott County history. Smith's on Saturday, October 23, 1852 and one in 1861, both of which were crimes of murder committed outside the county and tried here on changes of venue.

After the meeting, the group toured the Killbrev home. Mrs. Killbrev served refreshments. The next meeting will be held April 11 at the home of Charles Craver, who will present the paper for the evening.

Exchange Pact

The avowed aim of the program is to promote understanding and better relations between the United States and Russia, and the two-year renewal was negotiated in Washington in a fortnight this month despite the U.S.-Soviet differences over Viet Nam.

The signing ceremony was originally set for last Wednesday — but it was called off by the United States just before the event was to take place.

President Johnson was reportedly later to have intervened, wanting to make sure that the new agreement gave adequate assurance that attractions selected by the United States would be permitted to perform in Russia. Last year Moscow refused to permit performances of the musical "Hello Dolly" and turned down an alternate selection, the Roger Wagner Choral.

But neither the White House nor the State Department gave any detailed explanation for the U.S. postponement.

Saturday night the United States informed the Soviets that it was now ready to sign the originally agreed-upon text. U.S. informants said a review had found it acceptable without change.

He said the Buddhists traditionally perform their duty to bring peace and happiness to the people. He said that after the 1963 revolution, in which President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and slain, the Buddhists did their best to promote freedom and peace.

He cited various power plays among military leaders that followed. He said there have been so many purges and so many generals sent abroad that there is much confusion among the generals. It was in this connection that he called for the return of the exiles.

U.S. B52 jets were among warplanes aloft.

The eight-engine giants from Guam staged a saturation bombing of new fortifications erected at the Ashau Valley Special Forces camp, 60 miles north-west of Da Nang, since a regular of North Vietnamese regulars overran the camp March 10.

Lighter planes ripped at the fortifications earlier this week and a U.S. Air Force officer said it was reasonable to assume the Communists had withdrawn, probably across the border into Laos.

Fighter-bombers struck at fortified Viet Cong positions in the central highlands 50 miles northwest of Nha Trang. This raid was prompted by information found several days ago on the body of an enemy company commander.

U.S. Air Force and Navy pilots flew 47 missions over North Viet Nam, in some cases against heavy anti-aircraft fire. A spokesman said they silenced a hilltop gun emplacement guarding one approach to the Ho Chi Minh supply trail, laid a heavy carpet of explosives on the Mu Gia Pass 70 miles south of Vinh and destroyed 18 buildings in the Chanh Hoa and Quang Suoi supply areas.

A Navy A4 Skyhawk and its pilot who disappeared on a reconnaissance mission near Vinh on Thursday were written off as lost.

North Viet Nam's news agency said in a broadcast dispatch from Hanoi that a total of four American planes were shot down over North Viet Nam on Thursday and Friday.

Troops of the 2nd Brigade of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division wound up Operation Honolulu, launched five days ago in the Bao Trai area 25 miles west of Saigon in cooperation with the Vietnamese 25th Division.

The Americans said they killed 49 Viet Cong, captured 13 and seized numerous supplies, meanwhile providing medical treatment for more than 500 Vietnamese civilians. Some of the captives had tried to hide out in the Oriental River and adjacent canals. The explosion of grenades in the water brought them scrambling out to surrender.

The allied losses were termed "almost negligible." Among other phases of the situation, in Viet Nam and abroad:

—Some bigtime black marketers are reported to have fled the country since a firing squad executed Ta Vinh, a Chinese businessman, as a profiteer March 14. But the sidewalk operators carry on business as usual.

—A dispatch from London said British shipowners, under pressure from the British and U.S. governments, are quietly phasing out their traffic with North Viet Nam. Shipping sources reported 14 calls by British ships so far this year in the dwindling trade that Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart says has no military value.

—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara was quoted in a Washington interview by the Rome daily Il Tempo as saying the United States will continue to encourage its European allies to share responsibility in Viet Nam.

Short Circuit

The liftoff, launching, rendezvous and docking were really tremendous. We were really looking forward to the whole mission," Scott, an Air Force major, told a crowd of about 200 persons who greeted them at the air strip inside the restricted area of Cape Kennedy.

"We had a magnificent flight for the first seven hours," Armstrong, a civilian agreed. He told officials who called the plays on Wednesday's successful double-header blastoff that "it was a magnificent launch — without a doubt one of the best there's ever been."

The spacemen declined to talk with newsmen about any specifics of the harrowing ride which caused the first emergency landing in the U.S. man in space program.

After the brief reception at the air strip, they and project officials immediately delved into a technical review of the play by play of their shortened mission.

The spacemen — along with Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., who successfully piloted Gemini 6 toward a rendezvous with Gemini 7 in December 8 landed here at 7:58 a.m. aboard a four-engine C135 military jet transport.

Armstrong and Scott flew directly from Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii. They rested there most of Friday, after flying from Okinawa, near where Gemini 8 splashed down in an emergency landing Wednesday night.

Gemini 7 command pilot Frank Borman, an Air Force colonel, who was completing a goodwill trip to the Far East with Schirra, spent some time with the Gemini 8 crew in Hawaii, then took a commercial airliner to the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston.

Armstrong and Scott plan to continue their flight review at Houston after spending about three days at Cape Kennedy. They will hold a news conference in Houston next Saturday.

On board the C135, Schirra began the intensive review of Gemini 8 by discussing with the crew details of the flight into a tape recorder.

Armstrong and Scott were riding on the wings of triumph for nearly seven hours Wednesday, and achieved a space first — the historic linkup of two satellites in space.

Then about 30 minutes after Gemini 8 joined with an Agena satellite, the locked machines were bucking and rolling out of control.

Command pilot Armstrong wrestled the controls for about 30 minutes before Gemini 8 was free from the Agena and under control.

Preparations continued here for launching Gemini 9 astronauts Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Lt. Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan about May 26. Their flight could be delayed, however, depending on the final analysis of Gemini 8's troubles.

Like Armstrong and Scott, the Gemini 9 crew are to also link up with an Agena and Cernan is to take a lengthy stroll in space. At Houston, flight controllers Saturday completed a series of maneuvers with the Agena spacecraft and reported it is now spinning in a circular orbit 253 miles above the earth. They plan to keep an eye on it during the next several days, but no additional action is planned.

Project officials presently intend to use the Agena as a second rendezvous in space target for Gemini 10, which will also have its own Agena satellite target.

Strong Thornton Squad Wins State Crown

Brigham Young Downs NYU For NIT Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Jimas took over for ace Dick Nemelka and sparked a spurt at the start of the second half that carried Brigham Young to a 97-84 basketball victory over New York University Saturday in the final of the National Invitation Tournament.

Mets' 6th Win In Row Tops Exhibition Play

By The Associated Press
The New York Yankees continued their winning ways Saturday, defeating the Cincinnati Reds 8-7 on Ron Swoboda's 13th inning homer. The victory lifted the Mets' exhibition baseball record to 6-1.

The New York Yankees slipped under the .500 mark. They dropped a 6-4 decision to the Chicago White Sox. The Sox rallied to score three runs in the eighth on singles by Marv Staehle, Don Buford and Danny Cater and a double by John Romano. It was the Yankees' fifth loss against four triumphs.

The Minnesota Twins, who had been having trouble, pounded out 15 hits and took advantage of five errors in defeating Washington 12-8. It was the Twins' second victory against seven losses. The Senators have lost eight in a row.

Kansas City beat St. Louis 6-4, Detroit edged Boston 3-2, Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 3-2, California whipped San Francisco 4-1 and Cleveland beat the Chicago Cubs 2-1.

Bill Bryan, Ken Harrelson and Randy Schwartz homered for Kansas City, which used six pitchers to hold off the Cards. Bryan had three other hits.

Willie Horton's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the eighth carried Detroit to victory. Horton's long drive to right scored Dick McAuliffe, who had opened the inning with a triple off Boston's Dan Osinski.

Pitcher Bob Veale's two-run single in the second was the key hit for the Pirates. Rich Allen accounted for Philadelphia runs, slamming a homer with two out in the ninth.

Luis Tiant and Steve Hargan combined to limit the Cubs to only two hits. Tiant went six innings for the Indians with Hargan hurrying the other three.

The Atlanta Braves met Baltimore and the Los Angeles Dodgers faced Houston in night games.

CHISOX EDGE YANKS ON 3 RUN EIGHTH

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The Chicago White Sox pushed around three runs in the eighth inning and scored a 6-4 exhibition baseball victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

Singles by Marv Staehle and Don Buford and a double by John Romano started the rally that knocked out rookie lefty John Schreppel. Danny Cater tagged reliever Hal Reniff for a run-scoring single.

The Yankees had taken the lead on Lou Clinton's seventh inning homer that broke a 3-3 tie.

New York catcher Elston Howard had to leave the game in the sixth inning when a foul tip off Buford's bat caught him on the left kneecap. The injury was not serious.

Tommy John worked the first four innings for the White Sox, striking out five. It was Chicago's eighth victory in 10 games. New York is 4-5.

the NIT in its first appearance. NYU was seeking its first crown in eight appearances, but could get only its second runner-up finish.

Villanova won third place by defeating Army 76-65 behind the 29-point performance of Bill Melchionni.

Jimas came into the game for Nemelka, who has averaged 24 points a game, when the six-foot guard drew his fourth personal with 1:45 left in the first half.

The 6-1 sub started the second half and scored the Cougars' first point on a free throw. He then passed to Craig Raymond for a layup and scored himself on a jump shot, taking Brigham Young from a five-point half-time advantage to a 53-45 lead.

With Raymond dominating the boards and Jeff Congdon passing brilliantly, the Cougars went on from there to make a runaway of the contest. The top-

Wash And Wear Infield Makes Houston Debut

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Houston Astros Saturday night rolled out their new infield, a wash-and-wear rug of synthetic nylon that feels like closely packed crepe paper and gives every indication of being an advantage to the hitter.

The pool-table-green substance, laid in the infield and down the foul lines, made a special press debut before being used for the first time in game competition Saturday night, as the Astros met the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers in an exhibition.

Put down where grass failed to grow under the AstroDome of last year — at a cost of $2 per square foot — the substance has been labeled AstroTurf by the manufacturers and has been labeled difficult to handle by infielders.

Third baseman John Kennedy of the Dodgers said the infield should be a "great advantage" to the hitter. "Everybody complains about how hard our infield is — this is the same thing," he said.

"That ball picks up speed as it comes at you — and jumps," Kennedy said. "It's also going to be good for the bunters. It's almost impossible for the ball to go foul if you get it on the green part."

Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers was reticent about discussing the new wonder of the Astros' world.

"It looks smooth and it looks good," said Alston.

Then, someone bunted one down third, and as the ball hugged the green, Alston was asked about it.

"That's good," he said with a smile.

"The last time I said something, it was about the mule," said Houston first baseman Jim Gentile, "and that got me traded. I don't know if I should say anything now."

But Gentile, who came to Houston from Kansas City, proceeded to admit that "the ball does come off fast. It jumps off there pretty good. One came off like it was coming right in my glove, then hopped over my shoulder."

Gentile then walked out on the infield and printed to what he called "lumps," uneven lows and highs in the carpet-like surface.

"It's going to be interesting," he said. "It's got to make the ball do something."

Third baseman Bob Aspromonte of the Astros said the ball reacted like it was "coming off a wet infield. The first hop comes high, but if you get the ball after two or three hops the infield spits it at you in a skipping-type motion. That hop is real difficult to handle — it's quick."

Aspromonte, however, said he thought that problem could be solved by softening the dirt underneath the three-quarter inch thick carpet.

Sonny Jackson, the Astros' rookie shortstop, saw the hitter having one major advantage and the fielder another.

"If it hits low on one hop, it's likely to skip through a lot quicker than on grass," Jackson said. "But if it hits twice before it gets to the infielder, it's going to slow down and be an advantage to the fielder."

In pre-game practice the infielders seemed to have difficulty handling the one-hoppers hit by Coach Jim Busby, with Jackson committing two errors, second baseman Joe Morgan having trouble with two straight grounders, Gentile getting hand-cuffed by the hopper and Aspromonte letting one grounder go through his legs.

seeded Westerners led by 17 points late in the second half.

Stan McKenzie kept NYU on the scoreboard, getting 19 of the Violets' last 23 points. However, the best he could do was get the Violets to within 10 points, 82-72, with 5:21 remaining.

McKenzie was the Violets' high scorer with 27 points while Steve Kramer added 20 for Brigham Young.

The Cougars, runners-up in the Western Athletic Conference, finished the season with a 20-5 record. NYU, which had won eight of nine games going into the final, finished at 18-10.

For leading Villanova to third place, Melchionni was named the tournament's most valuable player. The 6-foot-1 senior scored 109 points, in four games, the fifth highest total in the tournament's 29 years.

Villanova, which lost to St. John's in last year's title game, did not have too much trouble with the Cougars, who had upset San Francisco and nearly repeated against Brigham Young. The consolation game was the third in three years for the West.

Clay Says Legs May Not Last For 15 Rounds

TORONTO, Canada (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, is playing a different side of the record for his March 29 bout here against Canadian George Chuvalo.

"I've never been 15 rounds in my life," the champ, who prefers the Black Muslim name of Muhammad Ali, moaned Saturday as he prepared to open training camps here.

"The most I've ever been is 12. Man, if I don't get some solid training in pretty soon, my legs won't take me."

Cassius said these are not his only miseries. He is 15 pounds overweight. His favorite cooks, Lana Shabazz and Ruth Bryant, aren't in camp. He has a skinned knuckle, suffered in workouts in Florida.

"I've got only 11 days left," Clay complained. "What with all this controversy and missing training and all the worries I've had, I haven't been able to think about the fight."

"I've got to start thinking. I've got to get in the mood."

The champion brooded over time lost in appealing his draft status. His draft board in Louisville earlier this week refused to change his classification from 1-A.

The champion said he lost two days when he came to Toronto to sign for the fight. He lost two when he went to Chicago to apologize for remarks made regarding the U.S. war effort in Viet Nam, he added, and the Louisville trip cost him four more.

Clay said he regarded Chuvalo as a tough opponent — and this feeling was substantiated recently in a dream.

"I kept hitting him and hitting him and he wouldn't go down," Cassius said. "Pretty soon, I was so tired I could hardly punch. He kept punching and getting stronger. He won the decision. Man, I woke up in a sweat."

Cleveland, winning its second straight game and third of eight thus far, scored in the first when Larry Brown's single sent Vic Davallillo across.

In the eighth, Hargan singled off Bill Faul, third Chicago pitcher, and got around on singles by Davallillo and outfielder Leon Wagner.

Starter Cal Koonce took the loss as the Cubs suffered their sixth setback in eight.

MANILA (AP) — Gabriel Flash Elorde of Manila world junior lightweight champion, floored Ismael Laguna of Panama, former world lightweight king, twice Saturday night and won a unanimous decision in a 10-round nontitle fight. Elorde weighed 135 pounds, Laguna 134½.

Laguna, the pro-fight favorite, took a mandatory eight count in the fourth round but was groggy when he got up at the count of nine in the ninth round.

Pointers but marked their first defeat in the battle for third place. In the two previous years, they edged NYU by one point.

Melchionni, playing his last game for the Wildcats, scored 10 points in the first half as Villanova took a 33-30 lead, then came back with 19 in the second half.

The six-foot-one back-court ace finished the tournament with 109 points for an average of 27 a game.

Dickinson Holds Slim Open Lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Gardner Dickinson Jr., led a closely bunched field in the third round of the $110,000 Florida Citrus Open Saturday with a 54-hole total of 208.

The lean 39-year-old pro from Dothan, Ala., managed to fight off severe back pains and the challenge of 77 other pros shooting for the $21,000 first prize purse.

Only 10 strokes separated the entire field after the 36-hole cut Friday.

Dickinson shot a par 71 Saturday over the 6,873-yard Rio Pinar course.

Two strokes behind at 210 were Lionel Hebert, Dick Lyle, Gay Brewer Jr., and Joe Campbell.

Another five were tied at 211, including Al Bessellink, Mason Rudolph, Jack Nicklaus, John Lotz and Tommy Bolt.

This comprised one of the closest fields in recent tournament history.

Bessellink presented the closest challenge of the day with a low round of 66, matched only by Sam Snead's similar score in the first round. Bessellink credited his low round with a "new form of putting," but declined to give details.

Dickinson got into trouble twice, once when he bogeyed the third hole and again with bogey on the 10th. However, birdies on the sixth and 15th holes evened him out for a par round.

Arnold Palmer was far back in the pack at 217, carding a 72 in the third round.

CLEVELAND 2-HITS CUBS FOR 2-1 EDGE

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Luis Tiant and Steve Hargan combined for a two-hitter Saturday as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Chicago Cubs 2-1 in an exhibition baseball game.

Tiant, pitching the first six innings, yielded catcher Randy Hundley's leadoff double in the third. He appeared in mid-season form, making 71 pitches and retired the Cubs in order in five of six innings.

Chicago's only hit off Hargan was Glenn Beckert's single in the ninth, and it scored Ty Cline. Cline opened the inning with Hargan's last of two walks, and advanced on infield outs.

Cleveland, winning its second straight game and third of eight thus far, scored in the first when Larry Brown's single sent Vic Davallillo across.

In the eighth, Hargan singled off Bill Faul, third Chicago pitcher, and got around on singles by Davallillo and outfielder Leon Wagner.

FRANCE DOMINATES SLALOM EVENTS IN U.S. ALPINE MEET
STOWE, Vt. (AP) — France scored a sweep of the men's and women's giant slalom races as singles struck American hopes Saturday in the United States Alpine Skiing Championships.

Jean-Claude Killy led a 1-2-3 sweep for France in the men's event when America's main threat, Billy Kidd, crashed near the top of the rugged Mansfield Mountain course.

A freckled, 16-year-old mado-moiselle, Florence Steurer, outclassed the world's best in the women's giant slalom with Wendie Allen, 21, of San Pedro, Calif., placing fifth for the best American showing.

The men's course on Mount Mansfield, nearly a mile long with a drop of 1,580 feet, was lightning fast, speeded up by a chemical called snow cement which froze on the surface.

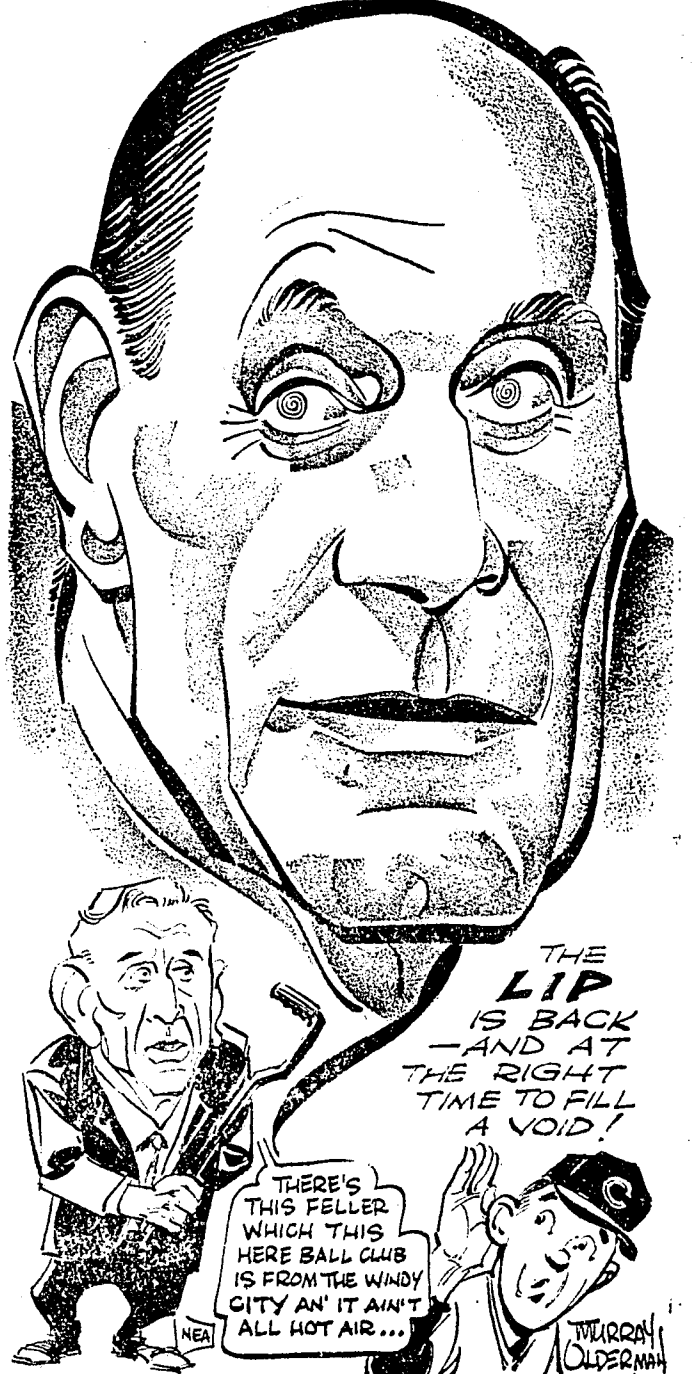

The daring Killy, 22, one of the sensations of the European winter season, sped down the track in 1 minute, 45.67 seconds. He was followed by teammates Guy Perillat, second in 1:45.76, and Georges Mauduit, third in 1:47.92.

Kidd, who learned his skiing tricks on Mount Mansfield, tumbled while favoring a sprained ankle and took a hard spill near the top of the hill. He was not seriously hurt.

Jimmy Huezga, 22, of Tahoe City, Calif., topped American finishers, getting fourth place in the time of 1:49.04.

NEW SKIPPER: DUROCHER

Cubs Cheer Return Of 'The Lip'

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK — (NEA) — When Leo Durocher was hired to manage the Chicago Cubs, somebody asked Buzzy Bavasi why no body had hired the Lip until now.

Durocher's friends kept saying he was willing to go back into the game. Since 1955, when Durocher left the Giants, there were dozens of managerial openings, including four new franchises in the expansion.

"Well," said Bavasi, the Dodgers' general manager, "I know Leo did have a couple of feelers, but after a few years away from the game I think maybe owners felt baseball was getting too modern for him. It was passing him by."

Told of Bavasi's remarks, Leo snarled, "The hell baseball has passed me by! They still play it with a bat and a ball, don't they?"

Leo Durocher, in all his blabbering glory, is back.

"When I was managing, I never took a tactical back seat to anybody," Leo said. "And don't forget I stayed close to the game as a broadcaster. And has Bavasi forgotten I coached the Dodgers for three years (1961-64)?"

"No," Bavasi said, "what I mean is that Leo's bark and bite method of managing might not be effective in today's game. It was effective 15 years ago, maybe, but there was a different breed of players then."

"With us," Bavasi went on, "the players didn't know quite what to make of Leo. He would shout, 'Lissen up on your girdle, Alice,' or, 'Never mind the TV cameras, Gertrude,' and they'd get mad."

Cats Dump Galesburg 74-60; Belleville 3rd

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Thornton of Harvey, having three frustrating second place finishes to show since winning its only title in 1933, overpowered Galesburg 74-60 Saturday to capture the Illinois State High School Basketball Championship.

The swift and muscular Wildcats let backcourt stars Rich Raterec and Lamarr Thomas take charge of the scoring in addition to stopping Galesburg's one-man gang, Dale Kelley, to achieve their lopsided triumph.

Except for their first round 61-57 triumph over Wheaton Central in the Hinsdale Super-sectional, Thornton found the tournament to be an easy task.

The Wildcats humiliated New Trier 59-44 Friday in the quarterfinals, and coasted past Decatur 67-45 in Saturday afternoon's semifinal. Thornton took down the crown with an overall 30-2 record.

Galesburg reached the finals with a 65-64 victory over Belleville when Kelley put on an individual assault in which he scored 37 points.

Belleville won the third-place trophy with a lopsided 72-40 victory over Decatur as Joe Wiley whipped in 31 points. Wiley finished with 128 for the tournament to shatter the record of 121 set by Ted Caiazza of La Grange in 1953.

Thornton wasted no time in establishing its superiority over Galesburg, which closed the campaign with a 27-3 record. The Wildcats stormed ahead 6-0 before Galesburg could get on the board.

With Raterec, a skinny unheralded 6-foot senior, showing the way, Thornton took a 20-12 lead at the quarter.

Raterec and Thomas kept up their backcourt assault until they had powered Thornton to an unbelievable 47-25 lead at halftime.

While Kelley, who scored a pair of back-to-back baskets in the early going to lift Galesburg within two points of the lead at 8-6, was being limited to five points in the first half, Raterec poured in 20 and Thomas 12.

Once Thornton had taken its commanding halftime lead there was no question as to the tournament champion in the minds of the capacity crowd of 16,128.

But the crowd waited for the final score and the awarding of the trophies.

WESTERN ILLINOIS DETHRONED AS NAIA GYMNASIAC CHAMPS
MACOMB, Ill. (AP) — Led by Richard Loyd who won two events and placed second in all-around, Northwest Louisiana State Saturday dethroned Western Illinois for the NAIA gymnastic championship.

Host Western, winner the last two years, finished a far second with 75 points as Northwest won with 127.5.

Others in the top 10 were Bemidji State 65, Northeast Louisiana State 64, Eastern Michigan 38.5, Slippery Rock 36, Georgia Southern 20, Eastern Washington 17.5, David Littcomb 16 and Fort Hays 10.

Dennis Sullivan of Northeast won the all-around crown with 48.40 points while Loyd was second with 47.47 and defending champion Jerry Polacek of Western third with 42.95.

Loyd won the floor exercise with 8.85 and the long horse with 8.08.

Sullivan tied with defending titlist Gerry Peterson of Western in the parallel bar, each with 8.725. Sullivan won the still rings with 9.0.

Another multiple winner was John Tobler of Bemidji. He took the trampoline with 8.85 and the high bar with 8.75. His teammate, Craig Kinsey, won the side horse with 8.05.

The tumbling title went to David Bedard of Northwest with 8.775.

NBA COMMISSIONER REJECTS PROTEST

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, rejected a protest by the New York Knicks Saturday and ruled that the Bulls won Thursday night's rough contest at Baltimore, 118-113.

Sixty-five personal and six technical fouls were called. The final technical was charged against the Knicks for having only four men on the floor after Emmette Bryant fouled out with 24 seconds left to go.

Dick McGuire, coach of the Knicks, protested that the officials should have checked to make sure that Bryant had been replaced. Kennedy said it was the duty of the coaches.

Sluggers on the Milwaukee Braves in 1965 produced a National League home run record. Six of them went over the 20 mark, a NL club high. They were Ed Matthews 32, Hank Aaron 32, Mack Jones 31, Joe Torre 27, Felipe Alou 23 and Gene Oliver 21.

KELLY UNANIMOUS ALL-TOURNEY PICK
CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Dale Kelley of Galesburg was unanimously selected Saturday night to the Associated Press All-Illinois High School Tournament Basketball Team.

Kelley, who led his team into the championship game, was the first choice on all 79 ballots in a poll of sports writers and broadcasters who covered the tournament.

Joe Wiley, Belleville's talented forward, fell only one vote short of being a unanimous selection. He was followed by Thornton's Lamarr Thomas and Jim Ard, and Joliet Central's Al Crusoe.

Players selected to the second five were Bill Snellings of Belleville, Dave Woodland of Benton, Paul Gilliam of Thornton, Barry Swanson of Galesburg and Rich Smith of Decatur.

the fourth quarter. Shortly after that, Galesburg snaked to within 10 points a couple of times but Thornton went into a control game and played only for sure shots while letting the clock run out.

Even before the final gun sounded and while the coaches were clearing their benches, Thornton players were congratulating themselves on their well deserved championship.

Kelley finished with 12 points in 10 points a couple of times but Thornton went into a control game and played only for sure shots while letting the clock run out.

Raterec topped the Wildcats with 24 points and Thomas pitched in with 16.

Priceage Board Suggested By UAW President

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP) — Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, Saturday discussed the creation of a public priceage review board.

Reuther said the proposed board would require that corporations that produce 25 per cent or more of the total products in a given industry give 60 days notice prior to any price increase.

They would then appear before the board to justify the economics of the increase, he said, adding that the board would also review labor union wage demands which might prompt price increases.

Reuther outlined the proposal before some 700 students at Rutgers University during a discussion entitled "Ethics In Our Time." He did not say who might serve on the committee.

"The basic dilemma today is the growing ethical gap between man's progress in physical science and the failure to make comparable progress in his ethics and morals," Reuther said.

"The only true measure of the worth, dignity and quality of a society is not what it is but what it does with what it has," he added.

Reuther said increases in productivity have far exceeded wage increases. "As tools of technology give us the capability of unprecedented economic wealth we have to find a standard to assure all the people can share the wealth."

He said wages went up 33 per cent between 1960 and 1965 and company profits increased by 67 per cent in the same time.

Reuther said economists predict the nation's gross national product in 1966 will reach $730 billion, "yet 30 million Americans live in poverty."

"Our poverty is not caused by inadequate resources but social indifference," he said.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC KILLS TWENTY-THREE

CRONDALL, England (AP) — A spring influenza epidemic has taken the lives of 23 patients in two weeks at a hospital here and forced it to close down, doctors announced Saturday.

The 145-bed Wimble Hospital, established for elderly women suffering nervous disorders, will be shut for a month because more than half the staff also is ill. A hospital official explained that although the virus is mild, it afflicts old people particularly because they develop pneumonia.

Air Timetable For Russian Economic Plan

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government Saturday announced a timetable for gradually putting Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's sweeping economic reforms into full effect by 1968.

The reforms, ordered last fall, are to be adopted first on a factory-by-factory basis, then industry-by-industry.

Then fully in force, the reforms are supposed to put the state-run economy on a more efficient, profitable basis and revitalize the Soviet system in its economic and political competition with the West.

The timetable for the conversion was announced by deputy Premier Nikolai K. Baibakov, chairman of the State planning Commission Gosplan in the government newspaper Izvestia. Gosplan is responsible for the new five-year plan.

The timetable calls for putting about 200 more factories under the new system next month, inverting whole branches of industry to the new system beginning in July, and completing the changeover by Jan. 1, 1968.

Kosygin's reforms, based on the ideas of liberal economist Yevsey G. Liberman and others, give individual factory bosses more leeway to take local demand into account in planning their production. Central planners will still impose general production goals and limit the leeway of the factory bosses.

Success, however, is to be based more on sales and profits than on meeting what in the past often have been arbitrary production goals ordered by central planners. The old system often encouraged production of unwanted goods which rotted on store shelves and cost the state millions. The new system is supposed to avoid this by considering users' demands.

The next fellowship dinner will be April 20, the next Blanket Day will be April 24, and May 8 will be the next clothing drive.

Mrs. Ricks closed the meeting with prayer, the hostesses, assisted by Margaret Stout and Mary Margaret Saunderson, served refreshments. The next meeting will be April 20.

CARITAS HELPS SISTER LODGE IN ST. LOUIS

Caritas Rebekah Lodge #625 met Thursday evening, March 3, at the I.O.O.F. Lodge Hall on East State street. Pro-temp officers for the evening were Eulalia Harris and Florence Marine.

Members reported ill were Florence Wood and the grandson of Grace Benson. A letter was read from the Triple Link Association of St. Louis stating they were building a float for the Bi-Centennial Parade in St. Louis, Missouri. The lodge made a cash donation to this project.

Indications Are Russ Preparing Defense System

MOSCOW (AP) — Large, mysterious structures in the countryside near Moscow and Leningrad indicate the Soviet Union is installing a defense system against intercontinental missiles.

This would be a significant development in the "balance of terror" between this country and the United States. Each now has the ability to destroy the other with nuclear missiles. Other countries, from Western Europe to China, are moving toward limited destructive capabilities with missiles.

Informed quarters here doubt the Soviet Union is capable of deploying a completely effective system of protection against missile attack on its two main cities. The technical difficulties of coping simultaneously with multiple missiles is believed to be too great.

But even a limited defense could affect Kremlin thinking about the risks it would be reasonable to accept in any future confrontation such as the 1962 Cuban crisis.

The present Soviet leadership has appeared more cautious and less likely to take risks. A decision to build an antimissile defense could be part of that caution rather than indicating any intention of taking out insurance for future risks.

Indications that the Soviet Union has decided on installation of an antimissile system have appeared recently. The large structures seem to be of an electronic nature. They apparently are radar control and guidance systems. Interceptor missiles themselves are not apparent.

Sophisticated radar networks, needed to detect approaching missiles at long range and to guide antimissile missiles to them, cannot be hidden underground. They might be the mysterious structures, with the interceptors below ground.

Thornton Romps, Galesburg Inches Past Foe In Semis

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Galesburg and Thornton of Harvey, a couple of title-starved teams, took different routes through semi-final victories to their meeting Saturday night for the Illinois state high school basketball championship.

Galesburg, paced by magnificent Dale Kelley, stormed from behind in the final period for a 17-15 edge at the quarter. Kelley's first charge came in the second period when he whipped in Galesburg's first seven points in the period for a 24-19 lead.

But the strong and tall Maroons, trailing 26-19 and 28-21, battled back with Wiley and substitute Dennis Russell hitting to move ahead 31-30. With six seconds left, Kelley made sure of a 32-31 Galesburg lead on a 15-foot push.

Galesburg, hitting at a 448 clip in the first half, cooled considerably in the third quarter. Missed shots resulted in rebounds for the rangy Maroons and Belleville came on strong to take a 52-44 lead going into the final period.

Kelley then put on his one-man show. With Belleville leading 58-52, Kelley scored three baskets to tie the game and then canned a pair of free throws to put the Streaks ahead to stay at 60-58.

Bob Jaspersen then made it 62-58. Wiley then scored to make it 62-60 but a pair of free shots by Bruce LaViolette gave Galesburg another four-point lead. Wiley scored again to cut the margin but Kelley came up with what proved to be the winning point on a free throw. Wiley's final basket with a second to play meant nothing.

Between you'n'me

LUKE JACKSON, the Philadelphia 76ers forward, has been playing the whole season with a cracked bone in his right leg. "I hurt it during the summer," Jackson said, "and it really bothered me during the exhibition season. But I could play on it, so I did. About a month after the season started I learned what I had."

"It hurts only when I get kicked and the only protection I wear is a sponge pad..." The crack is in the tibia bone... When the doctors discovered it, two said Jackson could continue playing... another advised against it.

It's amazing when you consider how hard the 6-9, 240 pounder plays. Last year in Boston he actually broke the floor twice after coming down with rebounds. "I guess they were just weak boards," Luke said with a grin.

The gunman held a family hostage four hours and wounded a college graduate student in his attempt to escape police, but lost his life in the gamble.

The gunman was in the back seat of an escape car, pointing a pistol at Mrs. Marvin Keeler, 22, beside him, when a police patrol car suddenly blocked the way in downtown Eugene.

Mrs. Keeler had been waiting tensely for her chance. When the gunman turned toward the police, she grabbed the pistol and held on. Her husband, who was at the wheel of the car, lunged back to help. Then a police shot rang out, fatally wounding the gunman.

He was identified as Harvey LeRoy Baker, 33, also known as David LeRoy Latham. He had addresses in Modesto, Calif., and Salem, Ore. Modesto police said he had a lengthy prison record for robbery and theft.

Police gave this account: Baker attempted to hold up a grocery store in West Eugene, but ran when a woman in the store began screaming. An investigating policeman stopped Baker nearby. Baker fired a shot at him, then ran into a house.

Inside were the Keelers and their sons, Martin, 3, and Michael, 18 months. The Keelers said they had never seen him before.

Police surrounded the house and called for Baker to come out. He defied them. At one point Baker let Keeler, 24, a college student, carry the 18-month-old boy out to police.

After three hours, Baker became impatient. He shouted a demand for an escape car. Police left a car in front of the house. Baker herded Mr. and Mrs. Keeler and Martin to the car at gunpoint. There he let the boy run to police while he forced Mrs. Keeler to get in the back seat with him and Keeler to drive.

Patrol cars followed, and Baker told the Keelers he would have to shoot someone on the streets to make police drop back.

At the corner of Broadway and Olive streets Milton Seligman, 29, a student for his doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Oregon, was waiting with his fiancée for a traffic light to change.

There Baker fired into the crowd. Seligman fell, a bullet in his neck. Hospital attendants said Saturday it missed vital parts and Seligman was recovering.

The patrol car shot ahead and Lt. Pat Larson fired the fatal shot.

SAYS WE CAN FIGHT 2 WARS AT ONCE; REDS AND POVERTY

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said Saturday night the United States "can have both ammunition and education — both a war against international aggression and a war against poverty."

Humphrey said in a speech for a Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner that the Viet Nam war is not going to force a choice between guns and butter.

"In fact," he said, "we must have both."

"For our American nation will not be able to meet responsibility and carry its international burdens unless our resources — both our material and human resources — are developed to the utmost."

"We can afford nothing less than this goal: That every American citizen will be a full and productive participant in our American society."

Humphrey said that while the nation is going about this, it must guard against the "destructive force" of inflation.

"Once a wage-price spiral gets started, it is extremely difficult to halt," he said, "and it can do great damage to our balance of payments and to our social fabric."

Miners Gain Edge On Defense, Poise

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Inspired Texas Western, led by the gymnastic efforts of little Bobby Joe Hill, toppled top-ranked Kentucky 72-65 Saturday night and captured the National collegiate basketball championship that Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp wanted to add to his collection of four others.

Duke won the game for third place, beating Utah 79-77 despite a tummy record scoring performance by the Utes' Jerry Chambers.

Hill, a 5-foot-10 backcourt man, scored 20 points, most of them in clutch situations and many on spectacular driving layups that brought to mind the hey day of Bob Cousy.

In the end, it was Texas Western's vaunted defense and surprising poise that won the big one.

Kentucky, on the other hand, noted for its finesse and discipline under the legendary coaching of Rupp, was kept off balance throughout and was guilty of a shocking number of lapses, mistakes, bad passes and mental errors.

Texas Western, once a little mining school just across the border from Mexico, was making its first appearance ever in the national final under young Coach Don Haskins but didn't let the pressure or the exposure before a national television audience bother it a bit.

The Miners, calmly dropped in 28 of 34 free throws and that — along with the rebounding of their strong front line — was the difference.

The turning point came early in the second half after Kentucky had closed to within one point at 46-45. The Miners replied with six straight points — four of them on free throws — for a 52-45 lead that never was seriously challenged.

Kentucky simply could do no right. Rupp, who has won 747 games in his 36 years at Kentucky, has called this his finest shooting team ever. But it wasn't when it counted.

The Wildcats, whose only other loss in 29 games was a meaningless 69-62 upset by Tennessee, was able to hit on only 27 of 70 field goal attempts — a dismal 38.6 per cent.

Hill's 20 led all scorers while Lattin contributed 16 and Orstin Artis 15 to the Miner cause. Pat Riley and All-America Louie Dampier each had 19 for the Wildcats.

Haskins, a one-time high school girl basketball coach, who has brought about a basketball revolution at Texas Western, closed out his finest season with a 28-1 record. The Miners' only loss was to Seattle 74-72.

Combes: High School Talent Abundant This Year

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois high school basketball teams this season produced the largest crop of fine talent the state has had in recent years, University of Illinois coach Harry Combes said Saturday.

The field listed by Combes included some of the top performers in the state basketball tournament — Dale Kelley of Galesburg, LaMarr Thomas of Thornton and Joe Wiley of Belleville.

Others who drew praise from the Big Ten coach were Larry Rosenzweig, New Trier's big center and Benton's lanky Jim Adkins.

Don Freeman, high scoring Illinois forward, described Thomas as "one of the best big men in the state."

"He has good timing, a good touch and is a strong boy," Downey said.

Downey said Dan Kuemmerle of Danville Schlarmann is another prep athlete with tremendous potential.

"Kuemmerle is an extremely fine jumper, a good scorer and can play both guard and forward," Downey said.

Combes said he has reduced from 100 to about 30 the number of boys he is considering trying to woo to Illinois.

Mrs. Eddy Speaks To Soroptimists

Mrs. Sherwood Eddy spoke to the Soroptimist Club at Hamilton's restaurant last Monday evening.

Mrs. Eddy stressed the point of women in India assuming their place in government rolls. The business meeting conducted by the president, Ruth Howard, was very brief, consisting of committee reports and correspondence.

The next business meeting will be with Mrs. Louise Harris and Mrs. Louise Andras at the latter's country home near Manchester. The door prize, a potted plant, was awarded to Mrs. Alvahlee S. McCarthy.

The speaker's table was centered with green and white carnations and other tables with St. Patrick's Day motif.

The international understanding committee, Mrs. Willa Phillips chairman, presented the program. For table arrangements the following served on the committee: Marguerite Hug, Alice Clinner and Frances Seef.

Household Club Program Smacks Of Practicality

The Jacksonville Household Science club met Tuesday, March 15, at the home of Mrs. Ernest G. Stout, 1502 S. Main, with Mrs. George T. Hardesty as assistant hostess.

"Something from Almost Nothing" was the subject of a paper presented by Mrs. Edward Hopper who was introduced by the program chairman, Mrs. Kenneth Mangin. It was pointed out that technological advancement in such fields as food preparation, and the manufacture of clothing, furniture and other home accessories has eliminated the necessity for "making do" as practiced by our pioneer ancestors.

Mrs. Hopper stated that relying on imagination and ingenuity in the remodeling and furnishing of the home can bring pride in the creation as well as financial benefit. Drawing on her own personal experiences many practical suggestions were given for the converting of furniture pieces, acquiring closet and work space, decorating a problem hall, building a fireplace or bookcase, and other remodeling projects.

Photographs were used to illustrate these various suggestions. It was emphasized by Mrs. Hopper that creating something from almost nothing brings its own sense of personal achievement, together with fond memories.

Preceding the paper members responded to roll call with practical suggestions which help in the saving of time and money and yet satisfy the creative urge.

A social hour followed adjournment with Mrs. John T. Taylor, president, and Mrs. Hopper presiding at the tea table.

First Class Junk Mail

There is much agonizing in the land about the quality of the postal service. Its flaws are exasperatingly plain to all who have considered the matter.

There also is much groaning, from time to time, because the Post Office Department is forever running up a deficit. The deficit is all the more aggravating because it is clear that almost every means of improving the postal service — further automated mail-handling, and so forth — will cost more rather than less money.

There is a third source of irritation. This is the swiftly rising flood of so-called junk mail — a flabberastating variety of circulars, ads, appeals for funds and what not. Millions are irked by their share of this flood. They are even more irked when they reflect that this outpouring, most of it unsolicited and much of it unwanted, generally moves at special low rates. This amounts to a federal subsidy for all such material, little of it demonstrably in the public interest.

Which brings us to a question related in one way or another to all the points mentioned above: Why should unsolicited mail dispatched to serve this or that private interest — to sell something, or to get something from the recipient — enjoy a federal subsidy? To sharpen the question a trifle: Why should not such mail pay the first-class rate an ordinary citizen pays when she writes to Aunt Flossie asking for her plum turnover recipe?

It is in the public interest that newspapers, periodicals, books and other printed matter should travel through the mails at less than first-class rates. This has to do with keeping the public informed. But that justification does not apply to great quantities of junk mail. Raising the rates on it might cut both the postal deficit and the flow of unwanted material that floods mailboxes.

Space Appropriations

America's best known space scientist, Dr. Wernher von Braun, is talking about momentum these days. What he has in mind is not the momentum that rockets give space vehicles on their lonely paths, but the momentum of the United States space program. He feels that we are in danger of losing some of it, and suggests that if we do the Soviet Union may yet win the race to get a manned expedition to the moon.

Before considering his views about momentum, it is important to note that the Russians may get there first in any case. Von Braun and others acknowledge that the Soviet Union's space program gained ground on ours during the past year. Still, maintaining the present momentum might make the difference between coming in first or second with a manned lunar flight. If one postulates that coming in first is of vital importance, then we should continue to go at the job hammer and tongs no matter what it costs. But is it that important?

Many well informed persons, including scientists, question the wisdom of assigning that kind of priority to the moon expedition. Though they may agree that getting to the moon has significant value, scientifically and in other respects, they see no reason for continuing the "crash" approach of recent years.

It is in this that they differ with Von Braun and others intimately tied up with the moon venture. When he says that "nothing is more wasteful in terms of trained manpower and money than to turn on the faucet and then turn it off," he is talking about the money bill before Congress. Von Braun says space appropriations in the President's budget are the "rock bottom," and that even if they are not cut there will be "a bit of a slowdown." Considering the needs in other fields, would "a bit of a slowdown" in the space program be such a tragedy?

Vignettes From The Press

Presidential Habit

The truth of the legend about George Washington having thrown a silver dollar across the Potomac is not really known. It is believable, though, because Presidents have been throwing money around ever since. (Norfolk (Neb.) Daily News)

Gas Saver

The little boy ran to his father and exclaimed: "Wow! You should see the great new lawn mower the people next door got. It doesn't need gas or anything! All you have to do is push it!" (Orlando Sentinel)

Fringe Benefits

A shrewd gunman, who suddenly appeared at the paymaster's window of a large plant, demanded: "Never mind the payroll, Bud, just hand over the welfare fund, the group insurance premiums, pension fund and the withholding taxes." (Pittsburgh)

Before Tee-Off

Then there was the inveterate golfer who, sentenced to hang, mounted the scaffold and said to the hangman, "Mind if I take a few practice swings?" (Anderson (S.C.) Independent)

Dear Ann:

Husband's Problems Need Ironing Out

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Before I married Erwin (fifteen years ago), I had never ironed so much as a handkerchief. I was determined to be an expert ironer and took lessons from the best ironer in town and paid for them. Today I will put my ironing up against anybody's. For the past several weeks Erwin has been putting on his reading glasses in the morning, looking for wrinkles in his shirts. When he finds one he throws the shirt at me and says, "Very poor job. Do it over."

This morning he found what he said was a wrinkle under the collar. (It was really a pleat.) I was so mad I almost threw the shirt back at him and told him to iron it himself. I held my temper and am writing to ask your advice. He never found fault with my ironing before — even in the days when I was just learning. What should I do? —SCORCHED

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl who will come right to the point. I have never been asked out on a date by a boy because I have buck teeth. My mother says I should make the best of it because we have no money for teeth-straightening. Can you help me? I hope so because I am lonely and miserable and it's all because of my teeth. —THE QUIET ONE

Dear One: Girls with buck teeth are asked out every day. Many of them get married and have families, which accounts for the children who have buck teeth.

The real problem is not your teeth, honey, but let's get them straightened. You will look better and feel better about yourself.

Call the Family Service Association. They will direct you to a clinic. Many dental colleges do free (or very reasonable) work.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 17-year-old son told us last night that his steady girl, aged 16, is pregnant.

Should we encourage him to marry her? She was such a quiet little thing and our son was considered shy by all who knew him. We can't figure out how they got into this kind of trouble.

Is it best for these two to stay in their respective homes until our son graduates from high school in June? The girl can't stay in school as she is already in her fifth month.

We did our best to bring our boy up right, but we must have failed somewhere. Please tell us what is prudent for all concerned. —HEARTBROKEN

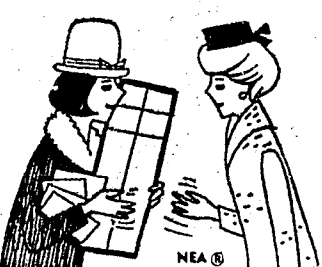

Dear Parents: It's difficult to advise you because there are so many facts I don't know. A great deal depends on how they feel about each other — and the baby. Do they WANT to get married? Do they want a baby? What do her parents say?

If your son and the girl want to marry and accept the responsibilities of parenthood I hope you will help them. They are terribly young, but they are in a jam and there is another life to consider. Good luck to all of you.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Washington Percy Faces Rugged Tests To Gain GOP Nod in 1968

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

Washington Correspondent

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Some

seasoned political observers are saying these days that a November victory for Republican

Charles Percy over Democratic

Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois would catapult Percy to the top of the 1968 GOP presidential roster.

A telephone survey taken by this reporter among party leaders in 10 states, including five of the seven most populous, suggests that 1968 may be much too early for even a spectacularly triumphant Percy to go for the brass ring.

A couple of leaders think the Republican candidate situation is sufficiently fluid to make consideration of Percy wholly possible. Most of those queried say he has to prove himself in the Senate, assuming he can get there, before being measured as a

White House prospect.

The fact that the 46-year-old

Percy, the defeated GOP nominee for governor of Illinois in 1964, is talked of by anyone in these terms is some kind of gauge on the enthusiasm (or lack thereof) being stirred by the early season leaders for 1968: Richard M. Nixon and

Michigan's Gov. George Romney.

Nixon still has to buck the persistent party complaint that he is a tired face, a twice-beaten man. Romney, though fresher on the national scene, continues to strike many politicians as a one-man faction, given to little sermonettes about the family and morality.

An incumbent Republican governor said recently:

"I'm not very charmed with the winter book."

Actually, Romney in recent weeks has had a couple of stunning party dinner successes—a fund-raiser in Denver and the other a Lincoln Day affair in

New Hampshire, where he might have to plunge into the 1968 presidential primary if he were to enter the lists. New Hamp-shire's Sen. Norris Cotton, a

1964 Goldwater man, offered

Romney surprisingly warm attentions.

Yet one or two old party

hands quickly marked down

Romney's Denver outing as "another boring morality speech," pointing up anew his nagging problem.

As for Nixon, currently fueling up in New York for a spring round of appearances for many 1968 GOP candidates, he evidently fanned no dazzling new flames on the Lincoln Day speech circuit. A feeling exists that he is riding on ancient momentum.

Thus it is that handsome

Chuck Percy, still without political office, comes to be talked about.

One of the two leaders who said a winning Percy might rocket swiftly to presidential consideration sees it this way:

"The 1964 Goldwater race

scrambled the party situation badly. I don't see anyone clearly out in the lead for 1968. In such a circumstance, a fellow like Percy could be catapulted to the top in a year."

A supporting view came from an eastern leader who argued that today's "saturation treatment through television" can provide almost instant fame for an attractive personality like

Percy.

The weight of opinion was, nevertheless, the other way. Veteran Republican chiefs contended that the Illinois whiz kid would have to concentrate on building himself a Senate reputation before working on bigger notions.

The logistics of presidential campaigning virtually compel a candidate to hit the road hard and often, 12 to 18 months before nominating time. In one leader's judgment, this would mean Percy would have to start running almost "from the day he was sworn in as a senator."

To another, again an eastern-er, talk of Percy for 1968 seems not premature but wholly misplaced. Said he:

"He just has no strong following in the party. I'd be hard-pressed to name one man who could fairly be called a Percy

$1,585

What's the catch? There isn't any. $1,585 is the suggested retail price at the port of entry for the VW Sedan. The price includes Federal excise tax and import duty. It includes the built-in heater/defroster, windshield washer, electric windshield wipers and dual padded sun visors. It's the price of the real thing; not a stripped down economy model. What else do you have to pay? The charge for transporting the car from the port of entry. The dealer delivery charge. And local sales tax.

There is one optional that makes a lot of sense: the matching leatherette upholstery, for $30.00 extra. Nearly everyone orders it because it eliminates the need for slip covers. And that's it. (Unless, of course, you count the cost of gas and oil it takes you to get here in your present car.)

TO BIG BRUCE WHEN HE SKATED TOO FAST!

SIZE AND VARIETY

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

At the beginning of the Space Age the Russians launched a few heavy satellites while the United States concentrated on launching a wide variety of small satellites. We have launched satellites to report on the weather, guide ships and planes, relay radio messages, (like the Early Bird shown above) and spy on the Russians, as well as to explore space.

As space exploration continued both the United States and Russia developed larger and more powerful rockets. The United States, however, was able to develop larger rockets at a faster pace than the Russians. So gradually we began to catch up with them. If our satellites don't pull any surprises we should top them in useful weight placed in orbit by the end of this month. This will be the first test of the full three module (section) Apollo spacecraft in preparation for our first three man flight late this year. The Apollo will weigh 17.5 tons. This is nearly 5 tons more than Russia's heaviest satellites, the thirteen-ton Protons.

Powerful Russ Rocket

Russia is not likely to stay behind in the space race however. They have a rocket capable of developing 3,125,000 pounds—25% more powerful than the United States' most powerful rocket the Titan III-C. This big Soviet rocket could lift up to 22 tons into orbit.

Even this lead will not last long, however. Next year the United States will launch the first 7.5 million pound thrust Saturn V. This monster rocket could put 140 tons into orbit!

Size isn't everything, often more can be done with a variety of small satellites than with one big one. Until 1962 the United States was ahead of Russia in the number of satellites launched. Then Russia began its Cosmos series which soon matched the number of launches by the United States. The Russians, however, have not claimed that their Cosmos satellites can do anything but explore space (although many

Let's Go Birding

Geese And Ducks

By Emma Mae Leonhard

The big snow had come. Country side-roads were full of snow; highways were walled in by banks of snow built by snow plows; even the city streets were filled with drifts too deep for auto traffic. Snow tires, chains and friendly pushes slowly untangled weaving traffic. And it was cold!

Such were the driving conditions which we faced on Saturday, February 5, set for our geese and duck trip. A truck driver had informed one of our group, Pat Ward, that for the last three days he had seen hundreds of geese and thousands of ducks in fields between Eldred and Hillview. Because of the heavy snow and severe cold, this seemed to us a fantastic tale and served as irresistible bait.

Snowy Fields

Pat talked his father out of the car with snow tires, and away we went. Pat's brother Tom and Bob Randall included. We drove and drove along snow-covered fields, the frozen river, snow-bound bluffs and rocky hills, through Kampsville and Hardin. We saw hundreds of Horned Larks, many Robins, Blue Jays, Meadowlarks, including Western, a large flock of Mourning Doves, several kinds of woodpeckers and hawks, Bob-whites, and other kinds of birds too, but no geese nor ducks.

Grateful for a good birding day and skeptical about the geese and ducks, we picked up speed to make our engagements in Jacksonville. As we neared Hillview, we thoughtlessly scanned the extensive fields stretching out to our left.

Snow and Blue

Then, all unaware, we were there—the truck driver had not been mistaken. We heard geese; we saw hundreds of Snow and Blue Geese forming an extending blanket of white and dark shades some distance in the field to our left. The shaded patterns shifted as some geese at times moved their position.

All of a sudden a Bald Eagle became visible in the sky. It soared nonchalantly over the geese concentration and lowered itself some distance. All of a sudden the dark flock of geese flew in swirling circles and bulging funnels, the Snow Geese the color of the white clouds in the sky above them, and the Blue Geese a sky of blue gray. The geese hurled a great chorus of loud utterations at the eagle and continued to swerve and circle.

Without a sound and with the greatest dignity the Bald Eagle maneuvered toward us, circled, and lighted in a nearby tree. The geese, chattering their disapproval of being unnecessarily disturbed, returned to their resting ground. Another Bald Eagle joined the first one, but ignored the geese.

We could write a similar story about the thousands of Mallards and Black Ducks that covered the next fields, but ducks are more common to us than geese. Our readers will have to add the duck story.

THE FOX DRIVE

By John Rankin

The sun was sinking behind the hills to the west as twelve-year-old Gordon Baxter emerged from the barn and stood in the doorway to gaze out over the valley to the vast area of wasteland with its patches of barren trees, rock cliffs and small streams. Rennie is out there somewhere with all the other foxes, he thought with a tinge of remorse.

And with the annual fox drive coming up in a couple of days Gordon's thoughts turned to the year before when the baby fox was left in the woods to starve after his mother had been gunned down by hunters. But he brought the little waif home in his hunting coat that bleak, wintry day, and with tender care and a nourishing diet had watched him grow into a playful and affectionate pet.

Returned to the Wild

But in time Reggie had become unhappy in his strange surroundings, refused to eat and howled insistently. And finally on Gramps' advice, Gordon recalled with considerable regret, he'd turned his little playmate loose and watched him scamper to freedom in the wooded hills back of the house.

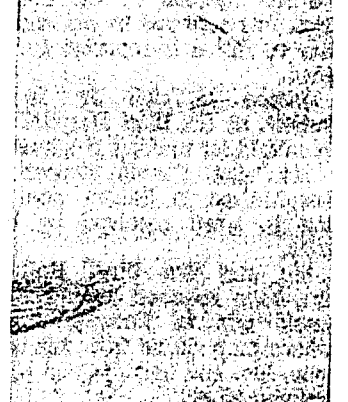

"He'll be in plenty of danger out there now, though, with as many as a hundred men with shotguns after him," Gordon thought. Then after several moments of deep meditation he turned from the barn and went to the house.

Later that evening Gramps laid the evening paper aside and looked up over his glasses at Gordon seated in a big chair watching television. "A lot to do about the fox drive this time, son," he said matter-of-factly. "Seems they're expecting more men even than last year."

Fears for Rennie

Gordon jumped up to turn off the television and sat back down before he said, "Yeah, a big splash about a whole army

TONY

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Often Tony walked to the farthest corner of his pasture where children gathered at the fence to pet and feed him apple cores, but a day came when not a child appeared.

The next morning at breakfast Gordon gave Gramps a knowing glance and then looked up at Grandma. "Guess the big fox drive comes off tomorrow," he remarked casually. "Think I'll get in on it and go along just to see what happens."

Grandma's brow wrinkled with concern and her eyes showed surprise as she gave Gordon a sharp look. "Don't be ridiculous, dear. You know very well that even without a gun boys are not allowed at such things."

"He is when accompanied by an adult," Gramps countered quickly. "It's been a spell since I was on a fox drive so I think I'll go."

Grandma gave him a stern look. "Why Silas Baxter!" she said tersely. "The very idea of a man your age taking part in such a strenuous and foolhardy venture!"

"Nothing foolhardy about it and age has nothing to do with it," Gramps shot back. Then giving Gordon a nod of assurance he pushed back from the table and swaggered from the room.

little girls pushing paper trim med doll buggies, a school band and autos waited. The Trail Riders in their bright trappings fell in line with Tony marching properly, his ears pointed and his long tail sweeping grandly even though he wore only an old halter.

One block, two blocks, three blocks, past watchers on porches, on where sidewalks widened filled with towns folk, then to the reviewing stand in the park. The black pony arched his neck well and kept in step although he carried no rider.

Big Surprise

In the park stood Tony's amazed master, too surprised to ask "How did he get here?" but he followed down the street, waiting for the parade to disband. Here he learned that Tony had cleared the fence to join the passing Trail Riders.

Now horses and ponies were led away to trucks and trailers for their homeward journey, riders large and small were filling autos and Tony contentedly returned to his pasture, his master's hand on his halter.

Later Kit listened to Tony's story of the parade; "now let me tell you one," he said. "Interesting?" the pony asked, a bit sleepy after his adventure.

"It will be, tomorrow they are going to work at the fence, you can get your nose over it but riders on decorated bicycles, that is all."

AGRICO Full Feeding Power

CRABGRASS:

How the Agrico Lawn Plan helps you wipe it out once and for all

Complete control of crabgrass calls for a two-pronged attack:

1. Kill crabgrass seedlings now
They're already in your lawn, ready to sprout as the soil warms. One application of Agrico Pre-Emergence crabgrass control now will kill the seedlings. Agrico crabgrass control is actually beneficial to desirable grasses.

2. Next—feed your lawn
The biggest enemy of crabgrass is a thick, healthy lawn that crowds out crabgrass. To build a dense lawn, feed it Agrico grass food (60% organic nitrogen with urea-form). Agrico gives you up to 30% more lawn food per bag because it's a Full-Weight fertilizer. So Agrico grass food feeds grass longer. This 2-step plan assures you a good healthy lawn that can keep crabgrass out. Get these Agrico Lawn Plan products now. Spreader settings are on the bags.

Jinny Bellamy's youthful look from Mr. Eddie's is centered around a three piece suit of imported cotton from Switzerland by Casino, while the hat is a Fashion Guild called "Baby Doll." Black patent accessories highlight the creation.

and running over

By Jim Brim

Whether you are a farmer or a city dweller, if you own or are buying your home it represents a big investment. Taking care of it is well worth your while. Don't ignore its maintenance needs any more than you would ignore servicing your car or tractor.

Check windows and doors for cracked or missing putty. Prime the frames with linseed oil so the wood won't draw the oil out of the new putty or glazing compound.

Lubricate door locks and latches once or twice a year with powdered graphite.

Basement leaks can frequently be corrected by work outside. If depressions have formed near the foundation fill them with dirt. Be sure the grades slopes away from the foundation. Check with your hardware or lumber dealer for new products to be used for patching minor leaks from inside.

Tuck pointing of brick walls in older homes may get to be an annual job. Clean out the cracks with a sharp tool. Wet the joint before placing new mortar. Tool the joint to match the pattern.

Look for roof leaks from inside by looking for stains. Then check the same area outside. Cement down loose shingles. Check and re-cement flashing and other possible trouble spots.

Gutters and downspouts may have been damaged by ice. Tighten them up. Check pitch by pouring in water at upper level. Proper pitch is 1" fall in 16'.

Patch driveways, too.

Look for other jobs that need to be done. Taking care of things before the last minute will save you money and reduce the long-run cost of your home.

Now you should—

- ... Disinfect the hog houses.
- ... Plant peas in the garden.
- ... Spread fertilizer.
- ... Read John II.
- ... Eat sensibly.
- ... Weigh pigs.

You know we all have a temper.

"We have anger because we are animal and we try to hide it because we are human," says Dr. Daniel Blaine.

Aristotle wrote "The brain is a cooling system to keep the heart from overheating."

So take your anger out by pulling weeds, tear down an old shed, clean the shop or basement, cut brush, paint, take a walk, start a rock garden, hit a ball—do anything that takes energy.

Devise a substitute for inner seething.

Don't relive anger. Ever notice the difference between good, sound reasons and reasons that sound good.

Eye Record Year For Corn Crop

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois farmers intend to plant 10.7 million acres of corn this year, the largest planting since record-keeping started in 1927. It would exceed last year by 7 per cent.

Total field crops planned will take 21.3 million acres, up about 1 per cent.

The State-Federal Crop Reporting Service said Friday soybean acreage would decline about 1 per cent to about 6.01 million acres.

Wheat acreage already sown is 1.5 million, down 13 per cent from last year.

Plans for 1.3 million acres of oats remain unchanged from last year.

Hay acreage plans are down to 1.6 million, or a fall of about 4 per cent.

2,120 Pounds Of No. 1 Pork, From Morgan

IT'S NOT OFTEN you can see 10 such wonderful butcher hogs as in this picture.

Three nationally known judges declared everyone of them a No. 1 meat-type hog and judged them the best pen entered in the annual National Stock Yards Market Hog Show held in East St. Louis March 9.

Swift & Co. paid a dollar premium, $27 per hundredweight for them, and after slaughter the company's dressed meat specialists determined that the winning pen was truly the winning pen.

The sleek, 212 pound grade Hampshires were entered by Bill Hadden of rural route 1, Jacksonville. His individual entry, a 205 pounder, also won the show's blue ribbon.

Bill Hadden has been competing in the E. St. Louis show for the past 10 years. He's always done pretty well; very well some years, but this is the first time he carried off both blues.

His son, Bob, also entered 10 lighter hogs, 200 pound average, and they also did very well: 3rd pen and 5th individual.

Shown with the prize winning pen are Don Hoffmann, hog salesman for John Clay & Co.; Bill Hadden and Bob Hadden.

As the photographer snapped the photograph Bill commented, "Everything in the picture is meat-type, except me."

The two pens of hogs were selected from 80 head raised on the Hadden farm on Route 104 a mile west of Jacksonville. They are around six months old and have been fed shelled corn and protein supplement.

They were sired by Blackbuster, a son of Penrod, raised by Reuben Edwards of Middletown, Mo., and the dams were gilts out of Bilt Rite raised by Ralph and Jim Foster of New Florence, Mo.

Herdsmen from Missouri, Indiana and Illinois entered this year's show. Illinois swept the top ribbons with John Beckett of Gillespie showing the second best pen.

All three judges are well known by leading hog men: Harry Russell of the U.I. animal science department; Wilbur Plager, secretary of the Yorkshire Breeders association, Lafayette, Ind., and Gordon Rhodes, head hog buyer, Swift & Co., Chicago.

The winning pen averaged 30.49 inches in length, 1.18 inches of backfat and dressed out 60% on the four lean cuts—ham, loin, picnic and Boston butt. The best individual had a loin that measured 6.87 square inches. His hams weighed 39 lb., 9 oz., and the four lean cuts yielded 101.7 pounds, or 61.6 of live weight.

Bill and Bob operate 700 acres of land west of Jacksonville, and also have 40 sows in partnership.

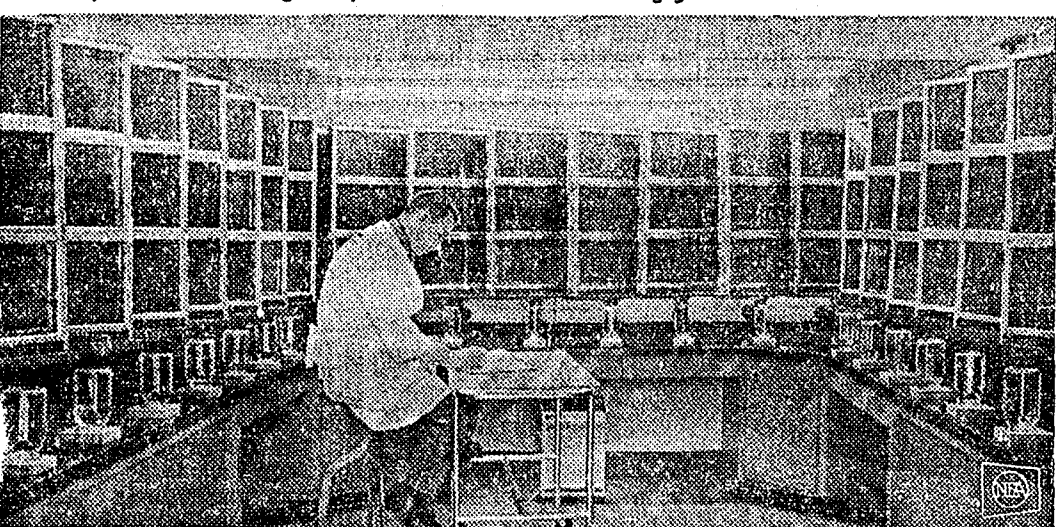

"I've been coming down here for the past 10 years," Bill said, "not in any particular hopes of winning anything but for the purpose of learning what's going on and how I can do better. The progress in the goal of lean red meat in that time has been unbelievable. Surely we won't be able to improve as much in the next 10 years, but maybe we can."

THEY'RE SEEKING INSECT SECRETS

Because tiny insects each year are responsible for millions of dollars in crop damage, research into new means of control is, year in and year out, a major effort of the Agriculture Department research stations. At right, a white-lined sphingid moth is attracted to a sensor, bottom, which a tiger moth already is sitting on. The sensor, emitting a low-intensity red light beam, is an effort to duplicate the radiation which attracts insects over great distances to food sources. If it successfully fools them, it could be developed as an electric trap.

Patterns, no two alike, painted around hive openings at Beltsville, Md., are used to test ability of bees to recognize patterns and colors in being guided to their home hives.

Beltsville microbiologist A. C. Michael is surrounded by bee colonies under diets containing various combinations of substances lethal to insects. The search is for insecticides which will kill pests but not beneficial insects such as bees.

defined as "any person, regardless of age, maturity, or experience."

In effect, the courts could ignore this limitation of the attractive nuisance doctrine by deciding that when children are involved, the landowner is guilty of willful or malicious conduct if he fails to warn them or to guard against dangerous conditions.

Until the courts interpret the new act, farmers should continue to follow the safe course by keeping children out or by taking steps to see that they will not be injured. Merely posting a "keep out" sign or a "no trespassing" sign may not be enough. If the farmer evicts the children, he should inform their parents that he considers the pond dangerous for their children and that the parents should keep them away.

Johnson Grass Review Planned In Chandlerville

VIRGINIA—Russell Meridith, Cass County farm adviser, announces a farm chemical meeting to be held in the farm shop of the Chandlerville high school on March 23, at 7:30 p.m. All farmers interested in Johnson grass control and the better use of chemicals are invited to attend.

M. D. McGlamery, chemical specialist from the University of Illinois will be the speaker. Some emphasis will be put on Johnson grass control. Most of the Johnson grass is located in the northern part of Cass county. However, small areas have been identified in at least six townships.

The county highway department and the city of Chandlerville have plans to control the Johnson grass on road right of ways and on city grounds.

Many new chemicals find their way on the market each year. All of these will be discussed. The meeting is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Illinois in co-operation with the Vo-Ag department of Chandlerville high school.

SET 4-H RALLIES IN CASS COUNTY

VIRGINIA — The Cass County 4-H Federation has planned two social functions for all 4-H members in Cass county. These events are planned to give members an opportunity to become better acquainted with others throughout the county.

A dance will be held on March 25 at the American Legion hall in Virginia. Music will be furnished by the Mark IV. All 4-H'ers, 14 and over, are invited. A rally will be held for the younger members on March 29, at the Virginia high school. The rally will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. A short program will be held with recreation following.

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

POULTRY INDUSTRY IS EXPANDING

Broilers Make Biggest Gains
The production of eggs and poultry is declining in Illinois, but the poultry industry is still important to Illinois farmers, for several reasons:

1. The poultry industry consumes feed grains equal to more than 700 million bushels of corn each year.
2. Poultrymen each year buy high protein feed equivalent to the soybean meal from 300 million bushels of soybeans.
3. Poultry and eggs compete strongly with beef and pork for the consumer dollars.
4. The production of eggs is still a big business in Illinois. In 1965 our poultrymen produced 1.8 billion eggs. At local market prices these eggs were worth about $50 million, but farmers sold many of their eggs direct to consumers at higher prices.

Egg Situation and Outlook. U. S. egg production in 1965 totaled 64.8 billion, about the same as a year before. As usual, the demand for eggs did not keep pace with population growth. Prices averaged slightly lower than in the previous year.

So far this year egg production seems to be about 2 percent less than in 1965. Prices have topped year-before levels by 5 to 15 cents a dozen. It appears that the extreme shortage of pork has diverted some demand to eggs.

Egg production is expected to continue below 1965 levels until about mid-year. By that time the good prices received for eggs in recent months are expected to encourage producers to raise production above year-before levels.

Broiler Industry Gains. The broiler industry is profitable and expanding in areas outside of Illinois. It has been helped recently by the shortage of pork, by the strong increase in consumer buying power, and by purchases for the military services.

Production of broilers has been running 10 to 15 percent over year-before levels for several months. Prices, however, averaged slightly higher in the last half of 1965 than in the same period a year earlier. In January broiler prices rose to the highest level in several years. Prices in early March were 19 cents a pound, 2 cents higher than one year before.

Broiler production increases regularly during the first half of each year. It is expected to top 1965 levels by 10 to 12 percent for several months. During the coming summer the production of broilers may equal or exceed the production of pork—when

Greenfield Grain Co-Op Reports Banner Year

GREENFIELD — The Greenfield Farmers Co-operative Grain Co. held its annual meeting Saturday, March 5, in the Greenfield high school auditorium. Dinner was served at noon by various church groups and organizations to 714 stockholders, patrons and guests.

Business reports were heard and election of directors was held at the morning session.

Manager Don Bailey reported total sales for the 1965 year of $1,812,617.35 with a net income of $49,271.50. A considerable increase over the 1964 net income of $16,886.64 and dividends and refunds paid in 1965 were $28,500.10.

Earl Converse, who has served as president of the cooperative for six years and on the board of directors 13 years, retired this year. B. L. Pembroke was elected to take his place.

Directors reelected were William Weisner, Roy Hettick, Carl Wright, L. M. Overbey, Kenneth Parks, Guy O. Kinser, Stanley Maupin, and Clyde Baldes.

At the reorganization meeting of this board, William Weisner was elected president; Guy Kinser, vice president; and Roy Hettick, secretary-treasurer. William Smith, manager of the largest Federal Land Bank association in the fourth farm credit district located in Rushville, Ind., was the featured speaker for the afternoon.

Musical entertainment was furnished by the high school music department.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. John Pruitt, bushel of Flomande alfalfa seed, Doris Muntz, Cory coffemaker, and hams were won by Mrs. Lonnie Tudor, Harry Pitchford, J. M. Hedgecock, Ada Hartwick, Helen Pembroke, Bernice Piper, Francis Rawe and Charles Guthrie.

Morgan Hogs Win In Carrollton Evaluation Show

CARROLLTON — Thirty barrows were entered at the Illinois Valley Swine Evaluation Day show held Monday at the Carrollton sales barn.

The top individual and pen of five judged on foot were owned by Richard DeOrnellas and Robert DeOrnellas of Jacksonville. John Early of White Hall placed third; Paul Steckel of Winchester, fourth; Louis Harr of Greenfield, fifth, and Steinacher Brothers of Carrollton, sixth.

The judges were Tony Sweitzer of the Hunter Packing Company of St. Louis, Dick Carlisle and Dick Simms, both of the extension staff of the University of Illinois.

Following the judging on foot all hogs were moved to the Hunter Packing Co. in E. St. Louis where they will be slaughtered and carcass cutout data and information returned to their individual owners.

compared on a ready-to-cook basis.

More Turkeys, Too. U. S. farmers produced 104 million turkeys in 1965, 4 percent more than in 1964. But the demand increased more than production, and prices received by farmers averaged 22½ cents a pound, 1½ cents more than in the previous year.

Since most turkey growers made good profits last year, it is likely that they will increase production. When polled in January they reported plans to increase production by 7 percent.

Consumption of Poultry and Eggs. Consumers used 309 eggs per person in 1965, 2 percent fewer than in 1964 and 13 percent less than the three-year average for 1957-59. They bought 41 pounds of poultry, 6 percent more than in 1964, and 22 percent more than the three-year average.

The top individual and pen of five judged on foot were owned by Richard DeOrnellas and Robert DeOrnellas of Jacksonville. John Early of White Hall placed third; Paul Steckel of Winchester, fourth; Louis Harr of Greenfield, fifth, and Steinacher Brothers of Carrollton, sixth.

The judges were Tony Sweitzer of the Hunter Packing Company of St. Louis, Dick Carlisle and Dick Simms, both of the extension staff of the University of Illinois.

Following the judging on foot all hogs were moved to the Hunter Packing Co. in E. St. Louis where they will be slaughtered and carcass cutout data and information returned to their individual owners.

compared on a ready-to-cook basis.

More Turkeys, Too. U. S. farmers produced 104 million turkeys in 1965, 4 percent more than in 1964. But the demand increased more than production, and prices received by farmers averaged 22½ cents a pound, 1½ cents more than in the previous year.

Since most turkey growers made good profits last year, it is likely that they will increase production. When polled in January they reported plans to increase production by 7 percent.

Consumption of Poultry and Eggs. Consumers used 309 eggs per person in 1965, 2 percent fewer than in 1964 and 13 percent less than the three-year average for 1957-59. They bought 41 pounds of poultry, 6 percent more than in 1964, and 22 percent more than the three-year average.

Latest Research On Pork Production To Be Heard Tuesday

Purebred and commercial swine producers of this area will mingle with their compatriots from all sections of Illinois Tuesday when they attend the annual Swine Day program at the U.I. College of Agriculture.

They will hear new research reports on manure disposal, protein levels for hogs on pasture and drylot and pen space requirements for pigs raised in confinement.

Other features of the program include reports on wheat and rye as replacements for corn; studies in improving swine reproductive efficiency; a report on the new, ultra-modern U. of I. Swine Research Center and a comprehensive look at hog price prospects for 1966.

Manure Disposal Studies. U. of I. agricultural engineer Don Day will report on the work with swine manure disposal systems. One method Day tested last summer involved treating liquid manure under slotted floors with lime to control odors.

In the same study, researchers periodically pumped the liquid waste from the pits onto a four-inch-deep sand filter bed outside the swine building.

The water drained by gravity through the sand and flowed by underground tile to a lagoon, leaving the solids on the sand bed to dry without odor. Day will give a full report of this and more recent manure disposal research during the program.

Grain Feeding Value. Researcher B. G. Harmon will report results of studies using wheat and rye as replacements for corn in growing-finishing pig diets.

Harmon notes that amino acid content is a much more reliable basis than protein level for estimating relative feeding values of farm grains. For example, wheat alone supplemented with vitamins and minerals will provide about a 12 percent protein diet — the recommended level for a 100-pound pig.

However, this diet would contain only .39 percent lysine, while the pig requires .50 percent. A supplemental protein source, such as soybean meal, is still needed to make up for the lysine deficiency in the diet.

Improving Reproduction. Studies aimed at improving swine reproductive efficiency will be reported by animal physiologist A. V. Nalbandov.

One roadblock to better reproductive efficiency is the fact that, although the sow ovulates 15 to 25 ova during a single heat period, 33 percent or more of the eggs that are fertilized die during embryonic development.

And, of the pigs that are farrowed, 20 to 35 percent never reach market. In other words, approximately 60 percent of our potential pig crop is lost. Nalbandov will report studies by U. of I. scientists who are trying to pinpoint reasons for the 33 percent embryonic mortality rate in swine.

Protein Levels For Pigs. Level of protein fed to pigs on pasture can affect feed costs. U. of I. animal scientist Dick Carlisle will point out that pasture can save $44 per acre in feed costs when hogs receive a 14 percent protein ration from weaning to 100 pounds and 10 percent protein from 100 pounds to market. He'll give a complete report at Swine Day.

Program chairmen Carlisle and Al Jensen say an exhibit featuring the latest in swine production equipment will open Swine Day activities at 8 a.m. in the U. of I. Stock Pavilion. The speaking program begins at 9:45 a.m. in the University Auditorium.

Parking space will be available in the U. of I. Assembly Hall parking lots. Buses will run between the parking lots and Stock Pavilion. The student Block and Bridle Club will serve a barbecued ham luncheon at noon.

March, 1866

A new and somewhat expensive fashion has lately been introduced by the Empress of Austria. Her Majesty attaches a diamond, to represent a dew-drop, to a natural flower, which is worn in the hair or borne in the hand as a bouquet.

Prince Esterhazy is negotiating a loan of $6,250,000, to pay his debts. His jewels are valued at $1,000,000.

On the 20th of January a trial of endurance, as well as speed, with regard to the relative merits of Arab and English thoroughbred horses in hot climates, took place in the desert between Cairo and Suez.

A pure Arab, belonging to Prince Halm, and an English horse, the property of Mr. Smart, started together from Cairo seven hours, eleven minutes, thirty seconds A.M. and at three hours, eight minutes P.M., the Arab reached the goal at Suez, having traversed the distance of 90 miles in seven hours, fifty-six minutes, thirty seconds, while his English competitor broke down nearly 18 miles from the winning post.

MISS ANNA E. DICKENSON — Notwithstanding the disappointment earlier occasioned by the illness of the lady, and the subsequent failure to meet her engagement in this city as per original notice, yet no speaker, save Gough, the great Temperance speaker, has ever been greeted with larger or more appreciative audiences. We do not propose a synopsis of her lectures, but only to say that no more eloquent and fitting eulogy was ever pronounced upon the Martyred President, and no more just and scathing rebuke was ever administered to the recreant President Johnson, than were contained in Miss Dickenson's lecture entitled "The Assassination and the Suicide."

Editor Bailey of the SENTINEL took a somewhat different view of the lecturer, whom he sometimes referred to as "a she-bagger." This is what he had to say of her visit to "The Athens of the West."

We omitted to notice last week, that Miss Anna Dickenson, who has been lecturing over the country in the interest of the radical political leaders, delivered two lectures in our city last week, on Thursday and Friday evenings, 15th and 16th. The omission our part was simply because we did not consider the incident of sufficient interest and merit to place upon record in our columns.

The title of the other lecture delivered by the testy little Quaker was titled, "Flood Tide." Both were printed in pamphlet form and enjoyed a very large sale in 1867, when she died of consumption during the impeachment proceedings against President Johnson. Today they make intensely dreary and rambling reading and to keep the audience awake and interesting the speaker must have had a fiery style.

We'll take a few more items out of the SENTINEL: MARRIED — In this city, on the 21st inst., by Rev. R. W. Allen, John N. Kaiser and Mary C. Zimmerman, all of this place.

APPLE TREES — At from $10 to $20 per Hundred, also grapes, currants, small fruits, evergreens, ornamental shrubs and flowers.

GREAT SALE OF TOWN LOTS — In another column will be found an advertisement of the public sale of fifty town lots in Askev & Springer's new addition to Jacksonville. This addition is laid out on the late county farm, just southeast of the State institution for the Blind, and is a beautiful and desirable district for the erection of tasty and ornate residences. When improved it will rival West State street, ("Swell Head Row"), which is now the pride of our city.

From the Carrollton Gazette: We have received a copy of a periodical entitled, "The Protestant Missionary," published at Jacksonville, Ill.

A lodge of Good Templars have recently been organized in this place, and one in the flourishing town of Whitehall. Success to them!

There is a family in this place who are the happy possessors of a rooster which, they say, hatched out and raised a large brood of chickens. It seems that they were also in the enviable position of proprietors of an old hen which laid about eighteen eggs, and, after performing that remarkable feat, concluded she would raise herself a family of chickens. So she went to setting; but, Alas! before she had accomplished that desirable result, was struck with death. But the aforesaid rooster took charge of the family matters and, so we are informed, did set on the eggs until hatched, and took care of the brood and raised them.

'Streaks', Belleville Win On Late Buckets

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Dale Kelley of Galesburg and Joe Wiley of Belleville led their respective teams to storybook finishes Friday in the quarterfinals of the Illinois State High School Basketball Tournament.

Kelley, a 5-foot-11 all everything, pushed in a basket from the side with seven seconds to play to give Galesburg a 73-71 upset victory over top-ranked Benton.

In the first game, Wiley let go from the free throw line with one second to play to give Belleville a 74-72 triumph over Joliet Central.

Benton, seeking to become the sixth undefeated team to win a state title, appeared to have things in hand early in the second half before falling apart and then putting on a stirring rally.

The Rangers, who bowed out with a 31-1 record, grabbed a 39-33 lead at the opening of the third quarter after the two teams had played brilliantly in the first half which found Benton leading 36-33.

Galesburg, smaller but faster, turned on the steam after Benton had taken a 42-37 lead. Kelley unloaded a 15-footer as the Silver Streaks poured in 12 straight points to go ahead 49-42 with Roland McDougald, a 5-foot-9 sophomore, canning three of the baskets.

The surge put Galesburg ahead 54-46 going into the fourth quarter and it appeared the Streaks would win with ease especially when Kelley made it 69-63 on a pair of free throws with 1:42 to play.

But Benton refused to quit. Dave Woodland hit on a pair of push shots and Rich Yunkus, a 6-foot-7 junior, tied the score at 69-69 on a jumper with 43 seconds left.

Barry Swanson regained the lead for Galesburg on a layup with 32 seconds to play but substitute Jim Hill tied it again with 18 seconds to go on a layup.

Kelley then sent Galesburg into the semifinals with his game-winning basket to give him a total of 31 points and game-scoring honors.

Galesburg outbounded Benton 45-39 and outshot the Rangers from the field 479 to 378. McDougald and Swanson had 14 points each for Galesburg while Woodland led Benton with 25, Jim Adkins added 17 and Yunkus 15.

The Belleville-Joliet Central game also was a barn burner once the two teams had gotten over their early tournament jitters.

Belleville, heavily favored, rolled to an early 6-2 lead and held six point leads three times in the final quarter but the tenacious Steelmen from Joliet refused to quit despite having a height disadvantage averaging four inches to a man.

Central battled back in the first quarter to take a 20-19 lead and would have had at least a tie at halftime if Wiley hadn't canned a short jumper with 10 seconds to play for a 37-35 Belleville lead.

Throughout the third quarter the Maroons nursed their lead in spite of numerous errors resulting in turnovers and held on to a 54-50 advantage going into the final period.

Belleville maintained control of its advantage early in the fourth quarter but Joliet Central began pecking away after the Maroons had taken a 67-61 lead. A free throw and baskets by Bill Alexander, Al Cruse and Mar Evans pulled the Steelmen ahead 68-67 with 2:27 to go.

ANGELS 10, CUBS 1

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — California's Angels rode a two-run first inning home run by first baseman Joe Adcock to a 10-1 win over the Chicago Cubs Friday.

It was the third straight win for the Angels over Manager Leo Durocher's Cubs this spring. The Angels are now 4-3 for the Cactus League campaign.

San Francisco will be in Palm Springs Saturday and Sunday for a pair of games. The Giants bombed the Angels 7-3 and 13-1 in Phoenix, Ariz., this week.

Adcock's smash over the left field fence came with Jose Cardenal on second base. It was Adcock's first trip to the plate in an exhibition game this spring.

Defense Attempt To End Braves' Dispute Fails

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller reaffirmed his opinion that Wisconsin has jurisdiction over baseball Friday and denied a defense motion to dismiss antitrust charges brought by the state as an outgrowth of the Braves move from Milwaukee to Atlanta.

Judge Roller, declaring he was satisfied he had such jurisdiction, rejected the contention of National League attorneys that baseball's previous exemption from federal antitrust regulation extended to the present Wisconsin case.

"Baseball is as exempt from the Wisconsin antitrust law as it is from the Sherman Act," said Earl L. Jinkinson, Chicago, attorney for the Braves. "No state law can reach beyond its borders. It is beyond the power of the state to interfere."

Bowie L. Kuhn, attorney for the National League, cited United States Supreme Court decisions of 1922, 1953 and 1957 which he said specifically exempted baseball from antitrust regulation.

Baseball attorneys also contended in their motion for dismissal that the state had failed to prove its allegation that National League members, in approving the transfer of the Braves and refusing to grant the city another franchise, had conspired to boycott Milwaukee as a major league site.

The defense opened its presentation by offering exhibits, a tedious process that used up the entire afternoon and prompted Judge Roller to call a Saturday morning session 9:30 a.m. CST.

Joe Torre Hopes He Can Reduce 10 Lbs. Problem

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Joe Torre has a big fat problem he'd like to reduce — his waist.

But adding to his dilemma is the fact that his batting average increases with his weight.

A charter member of the weight-watchers society, the Atlanta Braves' hard-hitting catcher almost failed to make the majors because of his weight problem. Now it's more or less under control, although the subject comes up for periodic review.

"I've been on and off a diet since I came here," Torre said as he sat on the Braves' bench. "I felt weak on the diet, so I thought I'd get off until I get in shape and then I'll go back on the diet. I'm a little heavy now."

How heavy?
"I weigh about 220, which isn't much above the 215-217 I played at the last two years," he said. "But I want to get down to around 210. That extra weight doesn't make too much difference when you're young but I'd rather get down while I'm young and it's easy."

"But I played at 205 the first three years and when my weight went up to 215 I had my two best years."

In the past two seasons, as a matter of fact, Torre has established himself as one of the most dangerous hitters in the National League, hitting .291 with 27 homers and 80 runs batted in last season after a .321 mark, 20 homers and 109 RBI the year before.

Sandy Koufax walked only 71 men while setting a strikeout record of 382 in 1965.

CHISOX' 5 RUN 7TH TRIPS WASHINGTON

POMPAÑO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Shortstop Ed Brinkman's error gave the Chicago White Sox an opening in the seventh inning Friday and they followed up with five runs and a 5-0 victory over Washington. It was the Senators' seventh straight defeat.

Tommy Agee's double and a two-run single by Ed Stroud were the big hits of the inning. Ron Kline, making his first appearance this spring, was the victim of four unearned runs. Joe Horlen faced only 12 batters in pitching four hitless innings for the White Sox.

Thornton, Decatur Post Easy Triumphs

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Decatur and Thornton, scoring dull, one-sided victories Friday night, joined Belleville and Galesburg in the semi-finals of the Illinois state high school basketball tournament.

In contrast to the afternoon session in which Belleville and Galesburg were forced to score game winning baskets in the final seconds of play, Decatur and Thornton plodded past seemingly inept foes to gain quarterfinal triumphs.

Decatur upset Rockford West 57-44 after Thornton had hammered New Trier of Winnetka 59-44.

The fireworks came in the afternoon session when Joe Wiley scored a basket in the final second of play to give Belleville a 74-72 triumph over battling Joliet Central and Dale Kelley came up with a game-winning basket with only seven seconds left to lead Galesburg to an upset 73-71 victory over previously undefeated Benton.

The opening session was a complete letdown following the scintillating afternoon games. Decatur, a team which didn't figure to get through sectional play, simply outclassed the Warriors from West Rockford. Decatur trailed in the opening minutes, took a 10-8 lead at the quarter and kept adding to it. The Reds, led by Rich Smith's 22 points, were in front 21-13 at the half and then outscored their opponents 36-31 in the second half.

The semi-final lineup finds Belleville (26-4) facing Galesburg (26-2) and Thornton (28-2) going against Decatur (26-5). Thornton's 59-44 victory over outclassed New Trier was a tremendous letdown to the crowd which was getting used to tight finishes following the first two quarterfinal games which were won in the dying seconds.

Thornton quickly overcame a 2-1 New Trier lead and smashed its way to a 14-9 edge in the first quarter. The Wildcats doubled the score at 30-15 in the half and then coasted the rest of the way.

It turned out to be such a one-sided game that Thornton coach Bob Anderson yanked his starters with a little less than three minutes to play and cleared the bench with the score 55-29.

Paul Gilliam led Thornton with 19 points and Jim Ard, 6-foot-7, pumped in 16. Larry Rosenzweig, the 6-foot-11 giant,

Gonzalez Captured Middleweight Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Puerto Rican-born Jose Gonzalez took the American middleweight title from Don Fulmer with a slashing body attack that earned him a unanimous 12-round decision at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The 25-year-old New Yorker, ranked No. 1 contender by the World Boxing Association, took the play from the start with his steam-punking to the body and scored a controversial knockdown in the eighth round, the only knockdown of the lively scrap.

It was the third time the Mets had beaten the Cardinals.

Rookie centerfielder Cleon Jones led the attack with four hits, including a double, and two runs batted in. Jim Hickman opened the second inning with a home run to spark a five-run inning for the New Yorkers.

Ex-Met Charlie Smith paced the Cardinals with four hits, including a two-run homer in the sixth.

Carl Willey, veteran right-hander trying to win a spot on the Met roster, was credited with the victory, pitching the first four innings and allowing one run on four hits. Ray Sadacki was charged with the loss.

Collinsville lost only three games this season — all to Belleville. The last defeat knocked the Kahoks out of a return trip to the state tournament.

SIU Captures Gymnastic Meet

WHEATON, Ill. (AP) — Southern Illinois, led by Frank Schmitz, scored first in three of the seven final events to win the NCAA Midwest Regional Gymnastic champion Friday.

Schmitz retained his floor exercise crown with 955 points and won the long horse vault with 980.

Side horse — Dave Ther, Michigan State, 960; trampoline — Wayne Miller, Michigan, 970; horizontal bar — Jim Cursi, Michigan State 9.65; parallel bar — Gary Vandervoort, Michigan, and Cursi, each 9.35; rings — Fred Dennis, Southern, 9.55. Michigan State was second with 188.50 and Michigan third with 187.80. They and Southern qualified along with the first eight finishers in each of the seven events for the Nationals at Penn State April 1-2.
